of the German rearmament programme, has come under virtual control of the Reich Stahleisen (steel trust), which owns 62 per cent of the company's shares, the newspaper Echo de Paris declared. Italy controls 10 per cent, the Mandel group another 10, and the remainder are in the possession of various less important interests, the newspaper asserted.

Vienna, July 13.—A high German source said today the new Austro-German diplomatic accord contains a number of "confidential points" yet to be announced officially.

These points, it was stated, include the lifting of the heavy German visa fee for tourists to Austria (1,000 marks) and the treatment in Austria of the Nazi flag on the same basis as the banner of any other country.

Appointment to the cabinet of the pro-Nazi Edmund Glaise-Horstensau, as minister without portfolio, was taken to mean Austria will permit the Nazis to have the voice in the government which their numbers entitle them rather than attempting to crush them.

German sources emphasized the accord was "the first difficult step," but they did not disclose their ultimate goal.

VIEWS DIFFER

Throughout Austria enthusiastic approval and bitter criticism greeted the Austro-German agreement today. Austrian Nazis who have fought the government for the privilege of preaching National Socialism throughout the nation expressed satisfaction over the accord.

Families and relatives of Nazi fugitives who fled to Germany to escape political punishment hailed the new understanding for the concessions which will allow the self-exiles to return home.

Legitimists, anxious for a Hapsburg restoration, joined Jews and Heimwehr (home guard) supporters in condemning the opportunity for spread of German influence afforded by the agreement.

Prince Ernst Rudiger von Starhemberg, Heimwehr leader who was deposed from the Vice-Chancellorship, was reported to have urged immediate restoration of the Hapsburg dynasty.

CANTON SHIPS
JOIN NORTHGunboat Flotilla Reported
Now at Nanking's Disposal

Canadian Press from Hava
Canton, July 13.—Reports reaching here said a gunboat flotilla attached to the forces of the Canton (southwest) government weighed anchor and steamed out of Whampoa harbor today, bound northward to place itself at the disposal of the Nanking (central) government.

Political observers regarded this defection—following desertion of some southwest aviators and reported defection in the southwest army—as placing Gen. Chen Chi-tang, Canton warlord, in a precarious position.

His air corps already has been badly hit by the action of some thirty pilots who flew their planes up to Nanking to join the government. Kwangtung province was reportedly sending troops into northern Kwangtung in a desperate effort to parry defections from the Canton army.

Gen. Chen also lost an important political prop when Hsiao Pu-cheng, one of the Kuomintang "elders," and a personal opponent of Gen. Chiang Kai-shek of many years' standing, issued a circular telegram demanding a peaceful settlement of the Canton-Nanking dispute.

Shanghai, July 13 (Canadian Press from Hava).—Gen. Chen Chi-tang, Cantonese warlord, was dismissed as military governor of Kwangtung today by the central executive committee of the Kuomintang, meeting in plenary session at Nanking.

Gen. Yu Han-mo, commander of the first Cantonese army, who switched allegiance from Canton to Nanking last week, was named the new military governor.

Gen. Yu left at once to rejoin his troops on the northern Kwangtung border, where fighting reported broke out between his forces and troops still loyal to the Canton (southwest) government.

The executive committee also called for the abolition of the Southwestern Political Council, the semi-autonomous body now controlling the south. Cantonese proposals for war against Japan were rejected by the committee, which approved Nanking's current policy towards the island kingdom.

It was also decided to reconstitute the "committee for national defense" on which the southwestern generals, including Chen Chi-tang, and Gen. Ph. Chung-hsi and Li Tung-jen of Kwangtung, would be given places. The resolution calling for abolition of the Southwestern Political Council was introduced by a group of thirty-one dissident Cantonese delegates. Observers here, however, doubted that it would be carried out.

LAWYERS MEET
IN VANCOUVERThird Annual Convention of
B.C. Law Society in Progress

Vancouver, July 13.—More than 100 lawyers from all parts of British Columbia met here today for the third annual convention of the B.C. Law Society.

Mr. Justice W. M. Martin of the Saskatchewan Court of Appeal was the speaker at a luncheon gathering. Brig. Gen. J. A. Clark, K.C., president of the Vancouver Bar Association, presided.

Mayor G. G. McGeer extended a welcome. He thought more lawyers should take a greater interest in public life. "If we of the bar are to survive and carry the respect of the public it must come from our services to the public," he said. "We are just at the beginning of civilization's march forward and there is more opportunity today than there was fifty years ago."

Attorney-General Gordon Sloan, K.C., presided at the opening meeting. Mr. Sloan gave a brief account of legislation advocated by the profession, which he has sponsored in the past two years.

Baron Tweedsmuir
Is Still in Hospital

Montreal, July 13.—Baron Tweedsmuir remained in the Royal Victoria Hospital here today for further medical observation, hospital officials said.

They added, however, the Governor-General was "not sick" and was merely staying in the hospital for additional X-ray examinations. It was reported that the baron would return to the Citadel, vice-regal summer residence, at Quebec.

Plans For Memorial Unveiling
Completed By Canadian
Leaders Now in London

Canadian Press

London, July 13.—Final arrangements governing the part of Canadian pilgrims in the unveiling of the memorial at the site of the Vimy Ridge action have been completed, following arrival here of the Canadian Legion official party, advance guard of 6,000 Canadian war veterans who will reach France later this month.

Indications today were that more than 100,000 would witness the Vimy unveiling ceremonies July 26.

It was announced King Edward will be host to the Canadian veterans at a garden party at Buckingham Palace July 29. Each veteran will receive an individual invitation.

Brig-Gen. Alexander Ross of Yorkton, Sask., who organized the Canadian pilgrimage, arrived in London Saturday evening.

"This is the biggest pilgrimage to war graves yet made, and it is a great gesture of regard for the Motherland and friendship for France," he said.

MINISTERS VOYAGING
Quebec, July 13.—Canada's official representatives to the unveiling of the Canadian War Memorial at Vimy, three cabinet ministers, are voyaging across the Atlantic today aboard the liner Empress of Britain.

Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice; Hon. Ian MacKenzie, Minister of National Defence, and Hon. C. G. Power, Minister of Health, form the government party. They were bid Godspeed by Prime Minister King, and piped aboard the liner by a Highland band just before the ship sailed on Saturday.

Another cabinet minister was aboard Empress—Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Minister of Agriculture, bound for London to discuss British and Canadian trade relations, said he probably would attend the unveiling ceremonies.

Others in the official party are Sir Robert Borden, war-time Premier; Lady Currie, Sir George and Lady Peiray.

Hurt as Negroes Demonstrate Against Italians

Associated Press
New York, July 13.—Extra details of police-patrolled Lenox Avenue in Harlem today to prevent rekindling of a riot that resulted in injuries to three of their fellow officers and an undetermined number of negroes.

An anti-Italian demonstration in front of an Italian restaurant touched off the disorder last night and sent the three policemen, swinging their nightsticks, into a crowd of 400 negroes who had listened to a white speaker.

Witnesses said one speaker urged his listeners to "run the Italians out of Harlem."

BOTH SIDES IN FRANCE DEFENDERS

Associated Press
Paris, July 13.—Critics of Premier Leon Blum's Leftist Government said today its parliamentary foundation was showing signs of cracking. Nevertheless, they predicted it would last at least until September.

Some Rightists, such as Col. Francois de la Rocque, leader of the transformed Croix de Fer, said they were out to defend France against a Communist dictatorship.

Leader of the government forces in the People's Front were just as loudly proclaiming their defence of the country against "Fascists."

Mr. Justice W. M. Martin of the Saskatchewan Court of Appeal was the speaker at a luncheon gathering. Brig. Gen. J. A. Clark, K.C., president of the Vancouver Bar Association, presided.

HELIGOLAND
IS FORTIFIEDGermans Putting Defences
on North Sea Island, British Commons Told

Associated Press
London, July 13.—Viscount Cranborne, under-secretary of state for foreign affairs, told the House of Commons today he understood Heligoland was being fortified by Germany.

Asked if the North Sea island was being fortified by leave of the British Government, Lord Cranborne said, "No, it is being fortified by leave of anyone."

Lord Cranborne, acting in the place of Foreign Secretary Eden, made the announcement in answer to a question from Oliver Locker-Lampson, Conservative, whether Germany's promise not to re-fortify Heligoland had been kept.

"Inquiries have been made," said Lord Cranborne. "I understand the island of Heligoland is being re-fortified."

He added that he right to inspect the island exists.

Heligoland is a fifth-of-a-square mile rock island off the German and Danish coasts in the North Sea, a strategic spot for the protection of Germany's Kiel Canal and the ports of Bremen and Hamburg.

Under the Treaty of Versailles, the island's fortifications were destroyed.

Defroster on Auto

Canadian Press
St. Thomas, Ont., July 13.—This tourist was almost as bad as the one who came to Canada with snowshoes on the back of his car. On Saturday a United States visitor stopped at a local garage with the temperature registering more than 100 degrees and asked to borrow a pair of pliers.

"I want to remove the defroster from the windshield of my car," he said. "I'm from the Middle West and my pliers are supposed to be prepared for snow and ice on my first trip here, so I put the defroster on the windshield."

FIRE FINE

Kamloops, B.C., July 13 (Canadian Press).—The hall stove today was convicted before Magistrate D. W. Howlands of burning material without a permit in contravention of the Forest Act and was fined $25.

The record far surpassed the 140.52 miles an hour which Eyston established over the same track last September.

The twenty-four-hour run completed the first half of a projected forty-eight-hour grind in quest of a greater speed than the 109.54-mile-an-hour record four European drivers established several years ago.

Eyston was jubilant as the records tumbled. He stopped at the pits for oil and gasoline and roared away again on the second half of the journey.

SALMON STRIKE IS SPREADING

Canadian Press
Vancouver, July 13.—A strike of sockeye salmon fishermen at Rivers Inlet spread to Smith's Inlet over the week-end, according to reports received here today by cannery operators.

The Rivers Inlet fishermen struck about a week ago for higher prices from cannery operators for sockeye salmon.

Smith's Inlet fishermen refused to resume fishing operations, the report said.

GIRL WITNESS
IS WOUNDEDWoman in Luciano Trial in
New York Left to Die in Washington

Associated Press
Washington, July 13.—Henna-haired Jean Bell's story that a "killer" mutilated her and left her to die after she "ran out" on a promise to help free Charles "Lucky" Luciano, vice overlord, from Sing Sing Prison resulted today in a wide search in New York City for the man she named.

Detectives said that a man answering the description of the torturer who carved "the cryptic numerals '3-12' and the initials 'C. L.' on her body and then tried to kill her by gas had left Washington on a New York bound plane at 4 a.m. Sunday.

They expressed confidence that he, as well as a companion whom the girl said was a "finger man" in the plot, would be picked up soon in New York.

The twenty-three-year-old girl, who was rescued from her gas-filled apartment by police early Sunday after a telephone operator had heard a girl call for help over the wire, was at the District of Columbia women's bureau today, suffering considerable pain from the cuts on her right thigh and abdomen.

DETAILS CHECKED
Washington and New York detectives were checking every detail of her story that the killer entered her apartment early Sunday, felled her with a blow to the face, tore off her nightgown, cut her with a razor-sharp instrument, then bound her and stalked out after turning on the four jets of a gas stove.

The girl said that, some weeks ago, Luciano's representatives approached her in New York. She said they wanted her to sign her name to an article, intended for publication in a newspaper, picturing Luciano as a "pretty young guy" and intimating he had been "framed" in the recent sensational vice trial in New York.

Luciano is seeking his freedom through an appeal.

The girl asserted she was given $500 to sponsor the article, but then decided not to go through with the bargain. She said her "conscience troubled her" and she "didn't want to be unfair to the district attorney."

FISH OUTPUT HIGH IN 1935

Fisheries Last Year Worth $34,000,000, Highest in Last Five Years

Ottawa, July 13.—Canadian fisheries output in 1935 was worth $34,000,000, the highest value in five years, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today. The total was made up of $25,175,400 in sea fisheries, with the remainder in inland fisheries. The previous year's output was worth $34,022,223.

Salmon led with a marketed value of $12,540,307, or 36 per cent of the total value. British Columbia contributed 97 per cent of the total value of the marketed product with a total of $9,688,305.

Lobsters were second with a total production value of $4,378,742, and cod third with $2,758,140. The lobsters and 98 per cent of the cod came from the Atlantic coast. Other important catches were herring, whitefish, sardines, halibut and haddock. British Columbia had the largest

BAN ON TRADE IS LIFTED JULY 15

DANZIG SENATOR AIDED BY REICH

London, July 13.—Lord Cranbourne, Undersecretary for Foreign Affairs, referred briefly in the Commons today to the speech by Dr. Arthur Karl Greiser, president of the Danzig Senate, before the League of Nations Council in Geneva July 4.

He said that on July 6, B. C. Newton, First Secretary of the British Embassy in Berlin, was informed by the German Ministry of Foreign Affairs that the substance of Dr. Greiser's statement "would have the full support of the whole German people."

Dr. Greiser demanded an end of League control in Danzig and closed his speech with the Nazi salute to League leaders.

output, with Nova Scotia and New Brunswick second and third respectively. Lobsters were the chief fishery in Nova Scotia and sardines in New Brunswick.

The total catch during 1935 was 9,532,017 cwt. and the value to fishermen at the point of landing $20,755,787, compared with 9,330,869 cwt. worth $19,714,935 the previous year.

In Line With Action By All Other League Nations Canadian Government Passes Orders Ending Sanctions Against Land of Il Duce

Ottawa, July 13.—In conformity with League of Nations recommendations, Canada will lift economic sanctions from Italy next Wednesday. Three orders-in-council imposing the trade barriers were repealed at a cabinet session last week, to take effect July 15. It was learned at the week-end.

The effect of sanctions lifting will be to remove all restrictions against Canadian-Italian trade. Goods arriving in Canada before Wednesday will be subject to the embargo, but after that date will be free from it.

The League co-ordination committee on July 6 adopted a resolution proposing that all countries should remove sanctions against Italy on July 15. The Canadian delegates to the league supported the resolution. Sanctions were applied against Italy by means of three orders-in-council which will disappear next Wednesday.

NO MUNITIONS

The first placed an embargo on the exportation of munitions to Italy. The second prohibited the importation into Canada of Italian goods, the exportation of certain key commodities to Italy, and the extension of credit to Italy. The third revised the second in certain particulars, permitting admission of newspapers, periodicals, music, maps and hydrographic charts, and enabling the importation of goods the price of which had been wholly paid to the Italian exporter on or before October 19, 1935.

REVOLT HEADS ARE EXECUTED

Fifteen Japanese Army Officers Sentenced by Court-martial Shot at Tokyo

(Canadian Press from Havas) Tokyo, July 13.—Going stoically to their deaths for having participated in the bloody army revolt of February 26, fifteen of the seventeen Japanese army officers and civilians sentenced by court-martial on July 5 have been executed.

The war ministry announced the executions yesterday. Details were withheld. It was believed the other two condemned men will be executed shortly. Five other officers have begun life imprisonment terms for their part in the short-lived rebellion which turned Tokyo into an armed camp after rebels had slain three of Japan's leading statesmen.

The then Premier Katsuo Okada escaped with his life in a melodramatic episode when his brother-in-law, Col. Denzo Matsui, was mistaken for the premier and murdered.

Fifty-one others who participated in the disorders were sentenced to varying terms of imprisonment.

Mayor Notified Edward VIII Will Arrive on Riviera From Vimy

Canadian Press from Havas Cannes, France, July 13.—King Edward VIII will arrive here July 26 to spend a vacation on the Riviera, the mayor of Cannes has been officially advised by Sir George Clerk, British ambassador.

The King will travel to Cannes immediately after unveiling the monument to Canada's war dead at Vimy on July 26. It was said, Sir George advised the mayor the King would be traveling incognito as the Duke of Lancaster and asked his co-operation in avoiding newspaper correspondents and photographers.

REVENUE GROWS STATES OTTAWA

Canada's Income in June $33,545,458 as Compared With $27,009,443 in Same Month Last Year

Ottawa, July 13.—Total ordinary revenue of the Dominion Government for June was $33,545,458, according to the monthly statement issued by the comptroller of the treasury. This was higher than the corresponding month last year, when the total was $27,009,443.

Revenue for last month, with June, 1935, figures in brackets: Customs, import duties, $7,278,942 ($6,048,140); excise duties, $4,004,341 ($4,074,705); excise taxes, sales, stamps, $12,079,740 ($9,447,878); income tax, $6,462,593 ($5,629,130); gold tax, $1,177,724 ($2,300,230); sundry departments, $1,519,050 ($1,351,632).

Total ordinary expenditures for June was $26,061,410, also higher compared with $23,000,148 in the same month last year.

Wheat Harvest Races Drought

Washington, July 13.—A dramatic race for the nation's grain belt is on in the great central grain belt, as farmers harvest their winter wheat and the drought grows worse day by day. So far, the wheat-harvesting farmers have the better of it.

Winter wheat harvest has progressed to the northern portions of the belt, the U.S. Weather Bureau weekly survey of crop-weather conditions, completed here, discloses. The harvest is well advanced in Nebraska and has begun in southern Michigan; in the southern part of the winter wheat area threshing is well under way.

The devastated wheatfields of the northwest represent the bulk of the nation's spring-wheat crop. Because it is planted in the same season that it is harvested, it got a late start and had relatively little use of the snow-water left in the soil. Winter wheat, grown predominantly in regions farther south and east, was well covered with snow last winter, used the thaw-water in spring to complete its growth, and came on through to harvest in good shape.

NORTH
The wheat harvest of the Pacific Northwest—Oregon and Washington—has given no concern, except locally on light soils. Throughout most of this important cereal-growing area, the condition of the crop is reported as "good to excellent."

Small-grain crops other than wheat, being mostly spring-sown, have suffered like the spring wheat. Oats, next in importance to wheat among small grains, is a short crop over practically the entire grain belt.

A note of tragic irony was injected into the drought situation by losses sustained by the Arkansas rice crop. This water-needing grain suffered not from drought, but from too much water that burst the dikes around the fields and ruined many acres.

Corn, the "big grain" both in size and money importance, is summarized by the Weather Bureau survey: "This crop has not as yet suffered serious widespread damage, though it is entering the critical stage in many areas where the continuation of hot, dry weather will result in irreparable damage."

Deals With Foreign Affairs in Bible Institute Address

Edmonton, July 13.—Foreign affairs were dealt with in the address of Alberta's Premier Aberhart to the Edmonton Prophetic Bible Conference yesterday evening.

Interpreting the Scriptures to his audience, the Premier foresaw an alliance between Germany, Austria and Russia, the three nations allying themselves for an attack on Palestine. Saying "the League of Nations has failed," Mr. Aberhart suggested "to the statesmen in the British Isles" that they "form a league of nations within the British Empire."

"Spain is down and France is slipping," the Premier said, "and Great Britain is going to be forced to form a league, a British league of nations," something the world, he said, had never seen before.

No Other U.S. President Has Met Governor-General on Canadian Soil During Term of Office, Though Harding Visited B.C.

Quebec, July 13.—When President Roosevelt pays a courtesy call on Lord Tweedsmuir here July 31—to talk of "ships and kings and sealing wax"—it will be the first time in the long history of Canadian-United States relations the head of the republic has visited the Governor-General on Canadian soil.

Back through the years several Governors-General have visited Washington to pay respects to Presidents, but so far there has been no reciprocal action. With the exception of President Roosevelt, who annually spends a few days at Campobello Island, N.B., his summer home, and President Harding, no United States President ever visited Canada during his term of office. President Harding spent a few hours in Vancouver on his way back from an Alaska trip.

The President and Lord Tweedsmuir will meet at the Governor-General's summer home at Quebec, the old citadel overlooking the St. Lawrence River, the very cradle of Canada and the ancient capital of the country.

HISTORY OF CITADEL

The citadel was started after the Montgomery raid on Quebec in 1775 when the Americans failed to capture the city. It was strengthened in 1823 and 1833 after the War of 1812. Millions of dollars were spent on the fortress, but in all the years it has never been the scene of a battle. In recent years the central part of the fort, after falling into disrepair, was renovated as the summer residence of the Governor-General.

The present fortifications followed rude construction by the French, who first erected wooden battlements. Stone construction was undertaken by the British and the present walls of the citadel date back to 1865, when they were erected at a cost approaching $25,000,000.

DR. CADMAN PASSES AWAY

S. Parkes Cadman probably was the most widely known religious voice in America. He instituted at the Young Men's Christian Association in Brooklyn a Sunday afternoon service that was regularly broadcast. Through this agency he was said to have spoken to more people than ever before in history had been addressed by a preacher.

An eloquent speaker, liberal minded and tolerant and having a wide acquaintance with facts over the whole field of knowledge, Dr. Cadman made his radio service attractive to persons of various religious beliefs.

NEW YORK PASTORATE

Thus his fame as a pulpit orator and the quality of his sermons spread far beyond the confines of the Central Congregational Church, Brooklyn, the pastorate of which he assumed in 1901 to continue for the remainder of his active ministry. As pastor of that church he gained rank as one of the outstanding Protestant ministers of the United States.

National recognition of his leadership came to him in 1924, when he was elected president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, the highest office among the Protestant churches of the United States. He was re-elected for several years and during his incumbency won many additional honors for the quality and quantity of his religious leadership.

World Conference on Faith and Order held at Lausanne, Switzerland in August, 1927. In connection with the discussion on church unity he delivered what was regarded as one of the most important addresses on the subject. He asked that greater recognition be given by Protestants, Catholics and Jews to the contribution which each sect has made to the religious progress of civilization.

MANY QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Dr. Cadman attracted wide notice by the questions and answers that were part of his Sunday radio services. It was through these that he displayed his amazing memory and broad knowledge of general subjects, seldom, if ever, hesitating in answering the questions propounded.

Interest in that part of the service was manifested in the demand in printed form for the questions and answers. This resulted in their publication in nearly 100 newspapers throughout the United States.

He was a son of Samuel and Betsy Parkes Cadman. In 1892, two years after his arrival in the United States he married Lillian Esther Wooding of Buxton, England. Before going to the Central Congregational Church, Brooklyn, he had served at Millbrook, Dutchess County, New York, the Central Methodist Church at Yonkers and the Metropolitan Temple, New York.

Many citizens of Victoria were acquainted with Dr. Cadman through his radio addresses. Others knew him personally as a result of several visits he paid this city on his way to and from the Orient in the past years.

Tangled Europe

TWO ITEMS OF NEWS TODAY, one from London and the other from Paris, further emphasize the already tangled diplomatic situation in Europe.

Viscount Cranborne, Under-Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, told the British House of Commons that Germany is re-organizing Heligoland, that fifth-of-a-square-mile rock island off the German and Danish coasts in the North Sea, the strategic spot for the protection of Germany's Kiel Canal and the ports of Bremen and Hamburg. Under the provisions of the Treaty of Versailles the island's fortifications were destroyed.

The Berlin-Vienna accord naming Austria a "German State" has drawn a three-pointed French demand for the prospective Locarno conference at Brussels. The first point laid down is that Germany and Italy must accept French terms to begin discussion on German denunciation of the mutual security pact when Nazi troops reoccupied the Rhineland last March. The second point stipulates that Germany will not be admitted to the parley until Chancellor Hitler formulates a basis on which to renew his nation's participation in Locarno conversations. The third point is that France will ask that breakdown in conciliation efforts be declared if Great Britain asks that the Reich delegates be admitted to the conference at its start.

The announcement that Germany is fortifying Heligoland does not come as a very great surprise. Hitler's policy has relegated the Treaty of Versailles and the Locarno pacts to the scrap-heap, and it begins to look as if Germany intends to do just as she likes. To what extent her rearmament programme has progressed is not known; but it can be taken for granted that her fighting equipment already has taken on formidable proportions.

France's three-point demand in connection with a new Locarno conference is not a hopeful augury. Some French officials are of the opinion that it will tend to make effective virtual alliances between Britain and France and between Britain and Belgium, while there is a suggestion, too, that it might include the arrangement of Germany before the League of Nations for breaking the Locarno agreement. After what happened in the case of Italy it is hardly likely that the prospect of admission from Geneva would disturb the sleep of Reichsfuehrer Hitler.

The general European diplomatic situation, however, is becoming so complicated that there is even present the danger of the "over act" which might easily be attended by serious consequences.

The Lobbying Menace

THE SUSCEPTIBILITY OF THE average congressman to the wiles of the lobbyist has been saved from frustration. The House at Washington by 264 to 77 has defeated the bill which would have compelled all lobbyists to register and thus make accessible to the public information regarding the interests for which they were working.

The move to curb lobbyists at Washington developed from such recent committee disclosures as:

Evidence resulting in estimates that $25,000,000 was spent on lobbying during the first session of the seventy-fourth Congress.

Thousands of fake telegrams sent in the effort to beat the public utility holding company bill.

Democratic national committeemen cleaning up hundreds of thousands of dollars through sale of real or imaginary influence with Democratic officials.

A lobbyist's offer to get ten or fifteen millions' worth of business for a shipbuilding company in return for $250,000.

A Republican ex-cabinet member's receipt of $100,000 from Associated Gas and Electric Company.

An estimated profit of $300,000,000 by Joe Silverman on fifteen years' dealing in army surplus contracts, with assurance from Joe that he had spent "most of $600,000" for liquor, flowers and gambling with army officers.

Conviction of a high army officer for receiving a lobbyist's bribe.

Every conceivable form of social, political, and business pressure to make congressmen vote against the holding company bill.

Circulation of fake war scares and discouragement of disarmament and peace gestures by lobbyists for shipbuilding companies seeking big cruiser programmes.

Various congressmen sharing apartments and houses with lobbyists.

Secret financing by the du Ponts and other Liberty Leaguers or organizations with various titles engaged in lobbying or propaganda.

Lobbying is a problem of all legislative bodies, in this country as elsewhere. Efforts, unsuccessful, have been made to deal with it in our own British Columbia Legislature. Of more importance than the nuisance the lobbyist is to the elected member, is the fact that his objectives are in the interest of some special group and at the expense of the public welfare. So powerful and insidious has organized lobbying become in its efforts to influence legislation that it is only occasionally, on some major issue with widespread public support, that elected representatives are found to have the courage to stand against it, or, at least, not to compromise. Senator Black, who sponsored the bill at Washington, is philosophical over its defeat, because it was the first time such a measure ever progressed as far as the voting stage in both houses. The fight will be renewed next year. It probably is the forerunner of more determined action in other legislative bodies against the profitable lobbying racket.

A World Record

INTERESTING HISTORY WAS made on Heale Rifle Range last Saturday when young Miss Gwen Spencer scored fifteen straight bull-eyes for a possible seventy-five at the 900-yard mark. As a result of this remarkable shooting she carried off the Lieutenant-Governor's trophy and chalked up a world's record for women. Indeed, this is the first time a woman has won a major rifle prize in Canada.

Miss Spencer's feat is all the more noteworthy because competition was furnished by all the crack men shots of British Columbia. She proved herself to be more than a match for them and marksmen and markswomen everywhere must have rubbed their eyes when the news of her achievement reached them. Miss Spencer has brought fame to herself and to Victoria. The most hearty congratulations are in order.

New Words

OUR COLUMNIST ON THIS PAGE the other day dwelt on Lord Tweedsmuir's objection to the general use of such words as "reaction," appropriated from the vocabulary of the psychology laboratory.

Professor Emeritus Alexander of the English department of the University of Toronto has stepped out of his ten years' retirement "to give his reaction to Lord Tweedsmuir's reaction to the use of 'reaction' and such new terms." It must be remembered, this compiler of the literature textbooks used by generations of Canadians points out, that in language, as in other things, our age runs to machinery. Human nature necessitates infinite variety. Additions are required for the enrichment of the English language.

"Slang," he said, "is the source of life to a language. The slang of today is the accepted child in the great family of words of tomorrow. Among such adopted words are: 'mob,' 'banter,' 'speculation,' 'preliminary.' These all came to us in their 'wild' form, long since domesticated and employed by the most fastidious. Yes, even the word 'hunch.' Even in my own time I have seen many once outlandish terms adopted as acknowledged members of the household of faith."

After all, the only authority in the legitimizing of words is usage. Usage, no matter how illogical, is supreme. It is not the easiest thing often to find out just what usage is, but its approval cannot be appealed from.

Recovery Indicator

THE NEW YORK SUN HAS GONE through the Social Register and reports that more of the families there listed are going abroad this summer than have so traveled for years. An increase in the number of fine families traveling is accepted as a very definite indicator of continued recovery.

Out here along the Coast, judging from the crowded hotels and the capacity loads on the steamships, just about everybody seems to be traveling this season. If the volume of travel, as well as the quality, can be taken as an indicator, fundamental conditions for this western part of the continent must be good.

Through the expansion of the business of hotels and transportation companies, and down through almost every line of trade, the travel increase is responsible for taking thousands in British Columbia off the unemployed lists.

Utopia Bound?

A MEMBER OF THE COUNCIL OF the Calgary Board of Trade is quoted by The Financial News as asking why that strip of fertile and sun-kissed land east of the Rockies and labelled Alberta should have apparently been set aside by destiny to bear the brunt of experimentation in search of Utopia for Canada.

He recalls, looking back over the list of radical and unsettling movements, that the One Big Union, with all its attendant grief, got its start in Alberta. Then came the Non-Partisan League and after that Henry Wise Wood and Aaron Sapiro and the Wheat Pool movement, which he said "came very near wrecking all of Canada." And now Premier Aberhart, Social Credit and scrip money. He adds that even the C.C.F. idea was born at a meeting in a Calgary hotel.

With its oil as well as its agricultural resources, Alberta is one of the richest provinces in Canada. But after all the experimenting and searching for Utopia, there seems to be widespread suspicion that the Calgary man is right when he says: "So far as I can see, no province in Canada is farther from Utopia than Alberta right now."

Notes

Many old-line politicians are beginning to feel they will never get anywhere with that "old line."

A Louisiana Share-the-Wealth executive struck oil on his land. His successor will soon be chosen.

When it is reported that an athlete was "merely a shell of his former self," it often only means that he met a better man.

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

PATRIARCHS' ADVICE

MR. PATRICK BURNS, the patriarch of the prairies, has lately given what he says is his last interview and it is full of sound advice to the young. Among other things, he says that young men must learn to think before they can get anywhere. How true, and yet how dangerous!

Just fancy what would happen if all the population suddenly began to think. Such a disorientation would arise as would uproot society. A thinking populace would take the whole social system and turn it inside out.

But, while the evils of the existing system would be attacked on a grand scale as soon as even a small portion of the public began to think, yet the net result would probably be disastrous, for it is the chief characteristic of thinkers that they never agree on anything. In fact, the deeper they think the more minute are the points on which they can achieve violent disagreement, and it is a mark of the deeper thought when you can finally reach a point where you can agree with no one, and no one can agree with you.

There has been the crowning success of all the major prophets and philosophers. While the public probably could not hope to reach that pinnacle, yet even if it thought at all society would probably fall apart, rent into factions. It will always be a point, so long as it does not try to use its mind too much. At the present rate it should survive for a long time yet.

WHERE? I don't mean I have lain awake at night but I have wondered with a certain melancholy—what has happened to Mah Jong. Some readers of this newspaper already entitled to vote may not know who or what Mah Jong was and even you may have forgotten. What a sad commentary on the quick sweep of time it is that only a few short years ago, about a decade, Mah Jong was as popular as bridge. Everybody played it. People willingly paid from $20 to $500 for a mere set of the fancy tiles used in the game. Now they are all gone, disappeared and lost.

Where? Where are the beautiful carved boxes, the ivory tiles, the red dragons, the east and west winds, the pings and the kongs? Somewhere they must be lying in forgotten attics and cupboards, millions of dollars worth of them just as good as ever, and you could buy the lot for fifty cents. And what has happened to the great Mah Jong industry which used to ship full cargoes of bones to China, carve them and ship them back again? What has happened to the millions of Chinese workmen who earned their living thus? Are they starving or on relief, or dead of privation?

It is a sad speculation well worthy of your pondering next time you have nothing to occupy your powerful mind. But there is this comforting thought—bridge will go the same way some day.

HEAT

ON THE GREAT central plain of America, which the works of man is rapidly making into the great American desert, the sun is withering the wheat fields. Every hour enough wheat is being killed to feed a large army, in this world where most of the inhabitants never get enough to eat. If we had not become so scientific, we might say no attention to supernatural phenomena, we might imagine that the angry gods were punishing us for the moral error of allowing starvation in past years in the face of our bursting granaries. Of course, no one believes in such things nowadays or in any magical plan in the universe.

But, having turned scientific, we might just pause for a moment to remember that only twenty or thirty degrees of temperature have baked up America's chief food supply. Twenty or thirty degrees seem a lot to us. They are nothing to the sun. Only the slightest alteration in the position of our planet would raise the temperature here a couple of thousand degrees and then not only the wheat would wither but we also.

We are frail organisms which can only live at all if the temperature is right within a hundred degrees, who die if it varies in the least. Let the cosmic machinery slip by one notch even for five minutes and we should all be cinders along with the wheat.

Just remember that next time you want to complain about our vile summer weather. You're lucky not to be cremated. Some day, if something goes wrong with the machinery, you may be.

ECONOMY

IT IS SURPRISING, and highly gratifying as well, to see how the deeper truths and complications of the science of economics are spreading abroad. You take my young and newly-married friend Gerry, of whose adventures in agriculture I have already kept you accurately informed. Before he arrived and settled down to a life of respectable sobriety and the culture of six tomato plants, Gerry had no idea of economics. He actually thought that if you have, say, $100, the economic thing is to hang on to it and that if you spend it you will be $100 poorer. But, thanks to the spread of economic enlightenment, he has discarded these false notions now and has seen the light.

He began to learn economics when he decided to buy an old second-hand car for $280. He came to me one day with a radiant face to say that, where a new car would cost probably $1,000, he would buy the second-hand one and save over $700. The next day he came to tell me that he had decided to buy a younger second-hand car at $400. It would be cheaper in the end because his repair bills would be so much lower.

But when some salesman showed him a new car at $1,050 Gerry, after spending the week-end in this seductive luxury, assured me that a second-hand car would be the grossest kind of extravagance for, after figuring out the whole cost minutely, he found that he could run a new car for $200 a year less than an old car and, as a poor man he could not afford to waste $200 in that way.

Then he tried out a car at $1,600 and felt it climb the Malahat and he realized with a start that a cheap car is expensive to operate because it depreciates in value so quickly, whereas an expensive car is good for years. After figuring it all out he concluded that, as a poor man, he could not possibly afford the cheap car and that he must content himself with the more expensive one. In fact, he has just assured me that if he does not buy a car worth $2,000 he will probably be ruined. He is going to buy the $2,000 one simply to economize.

Upon entering the garden,
That its spirit was a rowdy,

The flowers, secretly, winced,

RESPECTING OUR BETTERS

To the Editor:—Ex-Margate, in his letter with reference to Count Van Oudenal, states that Canadians will never be a great people until they know how to respect their betters. Here we have a perfect specimen of what is vulgarly known in this country as a "long-stocking guy." Such persons, suffering from an inferior complex, fondly imagine that they are the salt of the earth and that the rest of us were created for no better purpose than to bow down and serve them, addressing them as "Sir."

If Ex-Margate is dissatisfied with this country and the people who dwell therein, why doesn't he label his baggage Margate, get there and stay there.

But before he does so I suggest that he get the right-into-his mind that Divine Providence has decreed, that when we come to the end of our tether we are all reduced to the same level, and Ex-Margate will be no exception.

C.C.F. and Bruce Hutchison

To the Editor:—Your columnist, Bruce Hutchison, is very peeved because the C.C.F. forgot to consult him before electing its officers and drafting the provincial platform. Now that the matter has been brought to the attention of the party no doubt something will be done about it before the next convention as it is very unfortunate that both he and Jim Butterfield should disapprove of the last one for exactly opposite reasons.

Mr. Hutchison addresses his criticism to the wrong action of the C.C.F., however, as it was the political ineptitude of the right wingers which killed any chance of electing their slate of officers. A small caucus composed of Midgley, Skinner, Price and others, not together, drew up a list of candidates acceptable to them and distributed mimeographed copies among the faithful. A copy was handed by accident to a wrong delegate who arose and demanded an investigation. When the facts were divulged no one mentioned on the list had any chance of being elected and Dr. Telford, a number more or less regarded as adhering to the left wing, were placed in office.

It is reported that Mr. Connell was present and took a prominent part in the caucus which was responsible for attempting to railroad the convention, and if this report is not correct, then Mr. Connell has the opportunity of denying it.

Dr. Telford probably makes no claim to being a Marxist student and is not generally regarded as such. This will raise his social status among old ladies of both sexes who go into hysterics at the mention of a social philosophy of which they know nothing, but is responsible for the looseness of his ideas on social credit and for the lack of a clear definition of what the phrase means.

It was stated in the press that the convention made no attempt to define social credit. How would this place with the usual run of political parties and with the same amount of success. The only thing they have not succeeded in yet is doing something unconstitutional in a constitutional manner—and they probably never will. However, hope springs eternal in the Social Credit's breath and as long as the long-suffering workers can be prevailed upon to listen, why, as they used to say in the army, "There'll be pie in the sky, bye and bye." In the meantime that grown-up, long-trousered, sere and (as Lloyd George has it) yellow party in the Old Country has just voted $1,000,000,000 for guns, shells, tanks and what have you for the purpose of exterminating all and sundry—grown-ups and down—in order to keep the peace! And still Bruce Hutchison thinks Doc Telford is a "whirling dervish"! You know, Mr. Editor, I sometimes think that Karl Marx was a much greater realist than even Bernard Shaw!

DALLAS ROAD, DELEGATE.

SARTOR RESARTUS!

To the Editor:—Your usually reliable and unusually pertinent columnist, Bruce Hutchison, appears to have some of his facts mixed up in his tirade against the C.C.F. in general and Dr. Telford in particular. Mr. Connell was not displaced in leadership by Dr. Telford; on the contrary, he was overwhelmingly sustained by a vote of 136 to 76—and for precisely the same reason that Dr. Telford was elected president of the organization. Because neither of them are socialists. As to what creed they now hold or to which altar they now supplicate, probably they themselves alone know—but Bruce's guess is as good as anyone's and Aberhart's seems to touch the spot!

One thing, however, emerges quite clearly from the conventional noise and that is, that the future of the C.C.F. is quite safe in their hands—as also is capitalism!

Your columnist suggests that the C.C.F. has still to grow up and wear its pants. It would appear that this is just what they have done. They are now fully capable of taking their place with the usual run of political

SIDE GLANCES By George Clark

A SAANICH C.C.F. LAMENT

To the Editor:—Well, well, well, it is just too bad that it should happen to one, who, in the secret recesses of our soul we counted a friend and neighbor—even a conspirator in the enemy camp. Often when discussing current events from day to day with the wife, I would say, "I wonder what Bruce would think of such and such a thing?" Then we would turn to his column with the gleeful and innocent delight of children and read with high hearts and a noble courage what he had to say in that peculiarly roundabout, redundant and remorseless style of his.

And now, alas, another of life's illusions is shattered, another of life's fond hopes is ground to dust and ashes, just another of life's trust in the will of man is shattered and gone, forever—when we think of the news comment of the (what we once thought of as "our Bruce") about our C.C.F. convention, we are filled with woe and wailing and a gnashing of teeth.

The wife has sat by this stove all day, the food is uncooked, our misery unbounded. She sits by the fire, inarticulate, her apron over her head, hopeless, helpless and horrible. What, oh what will become of us?

I dread going out to the front steps for the paper tonight. Suppose the one we trusted with our all—the one above all, we set upon the throne of knowledge and high purpose—suppose that this one (our once noble Bruce) has political aspirations, our very own C.C.F.!

But, knowing his inconstancy and inaccuracy I try to cheer up my wife (and myself), saying: "It is that playful way he has with him. The boy has a living to earn. Can you blame him?" But my voice sounds thin and shaken, doubts cloud the clearness of my reasoning. At the bottom of my soul (if I have one) I think he meant it.

Woe, woe, woe is us.

Glyn P.O. SAANICH-ITCH.

SOARING ROBOTS TEST WEATHER

Elmira, N.Y., July 13.—"Robot" weather instruments, carried high aloft on small unmanned balloons, proved their worth during the Seventh Annual National Soaring Contest just concluded here. Each one automatically reported by radio the altitude of the balloon, relative humidity and temperature every minute throughout its flight into the upper atmosphere.

The information secured in this way has been added to the periodic meteorological data collected for the use of soaring pilots in their annual assault upon world and national records in motorless flight. The radio-meteorograph ascensions have been conducted by representatives of the Blue Hill observatory, Harvard University, Milton, Mass., under the direction of Dr. K. O. Lange, who has pioneered in the development of this new type of medium for collecting meteorological data.

The first ascension during the soaring contest was made from Harris Hill on June 27. The twin balloons needed to carry the tiny apparatus rose to an altitude of 66,000 feet and signals were heard for sixty-four minutes from the take-off time—4:10 o'clock in the afternoon. During the second ascension, made on the following day, the balloons carrying the instruments reached an altitude of about 80,000 feet and the signals were heard for one hour fifty-eight minutes.

The balloons reached an altitude of about 100,000 feet on June 29, the signals being heard from 12:14 p.m. to 2:57 p.m.

A specially interesting ascension was made on June 29. The balloons were released after dark in the evening and were followed to 13,200 feet. At that point the signals began to record a descent. They were followed to a point where the temperature was lower than at the take-off site, indicating that the apparatus had landed. The failure of the balloons to go higher in this flight probably was due to the bursting of one of the balloons.

Beginning in 1932, the soaring contests conducted by the Soaring Society of America have had the advantage of the most advanced meteorological service available. The soaring pilots were among the first in this country to be taught to use the air mass system of weather forecasting and interpretation and the continuation of the Blue Hill observatory experiments with the radio-meteorograph through the two-week period of the 1936 soaring contest is in line with the society's policy of investigating every promising medium for securing weather information.

Sir T. C. Worsfold Dies in London

Canadian Press
London, July 13.—Sir Thomas Cato Worsfold, former member of parliament and well known in legal circles, died Saturday.

He became a solicitor in 1883 and was a commissioner in England for the British colonies and the high courts of the United States. He was Conservative M.P. for Mitcham division of Surrey, 1918-23, and was made a baronet in 1924.

Electro-plating of silver first was discovered about the middle of the nineteenth century.

H.B.C. NIGHT ON SHOW BOAT

Amateur Contests This Evening, When Prizes Amounting to $20 Will Be Awarded

This evening the Hudson's Bay Company will sponsor the amateur contests on the Show Boat, supported by Curley's Harmonious Harpists in an entirely new programme, according to T. H. Ball.

As a tribute to Hudson's Bay night, Curley will give a new presentation of radio oddities, entitled "Women on the Air—and Why?" and Elvira, the coy rustic maiden of the company, will contribute a drum and effects fantasia entitled "Soldiers Off Parade."

The sum of $20 in prizes, given by the Hudson's Bay Company, will be awarded to the winning aspirants for amateur honors tonight. The two first prize winners will be eligible to compete in the finals in September, for which prizes amounting to nearly $1,000 are offered.

The Monday night shows and contests are attracting larger audiences each week and the quality of amateur talent competing improves with each show, according to the secretary of the Tourist Trade Association.

NEW DUST BOWL IN MIDDLE WEST

Washington, July 13.—Drought is making another dust bowl in the northwest, to replace the one in the southwest that was blotted out, at least temporarily, by heavy rains a few weeks ago. The soil of the Dakotas and Montana, left naked over the area by the death of all vegetation, lies loose to any wind that chooses to blow.

For the present, dust storms are not expected, for strong winds are rather exceptional in summer. But when the powerfully stormy northwesterlies begin to blow, in late autumn and winter, it will be another story.

"Unless the land can be well covered with vegetation, there is every likelihood that the drought area will furnish severe dust storms," Dr. Walter C. Lowdermilk of the Soil Conservation Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, told Science Service. And at present the prospects for covering the land appear very slim indeed.

A snow cover, falling early and persisting through the winter, might avert the wrath to come until March, when the snow melts off and the high winds will blow the dust regardless. But if the winter is open and relatively snowless, as it often is in the northwest, the dust storms may rage all winter through.

In the new dust bowl as in the old, there is only one dependable permanent remedy: Cut down the ploughed area and increase the acreage of deep-rooted, long-lived grasses.

Plan to Raise Sunken Vessel

Canadian Press
Dawson, July 13.—White Pass and Yukon route officials today prepared to raise and repair their passenger steamer Casca which struck the sunken hull of the steamer Dawson at Sink Rapids in the Yukon River Friday and sank almost immediately.

The vessel's sixteen passengers were uninjured and were brought here by airplane. The sunken cargo suffered some damage and a number of mail sacks were reported to have floated away.

Mining and commercial interests will suffer as a result of the accident through lack of materials and supplies for operations during the short season.

Twenty-five Years Ago Today

JULY 13, 1911
(From The Times Files)

Yesterday was a fete day for the Orangemen of British Columbia on the occasion of the Boyne anniversary and Victoria, which was made the centre of the demonstration, gained in animation and, incidentally, in population, for the mainland contingents who came over to take part in the proceedings were numerically strong.

Ground was broken yesterday afternoon on the west side of Government Street, facing Avalon Road, for an apartment house, which the Parfitt brothers are putting up. It will be four stories in height, of concrete, faced with brick on the lower stories, and will be ninety feet square.

Although many followers of baseball had predicted that the undefeated Times aggregation could not last another season, its decisive victory of yesterday over the nine from the morning newspaper effectively set all doubts at rest. Roy Shields, a youngster of considerable promise, mounted the slab for The Times and was opposed by Tommy Gray, the morning journal's dope ball artist.

The residence of Mrs. Julia Procter, David Street, was the scene of a very pretty home wedding on Wednesday evening, July 5, when her daughter, Mary Isabel, was united in holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Edward Page Kirchin.

Ernie R. Thompson, son of James Thompson, local manager of the Hudson's Bay Company, has returned home from Edinburgh University, where he took his M.A. degree.

STORIES IN STAMPS

By I. S. Klein

DISGRACED FOR His Victory

Austria was fighting a losing war against Prussia and Italy, in 1866. Off the island of Lissa, in the Adriatic, Vice-admiral Wilhelm von Tegethoff led his small, ancient fleet to ward an Italian armada, three times the size of his. The proud, ironclad Re d'Italia stood out from all Italy's ships, when Austria's wooden vessel, the Ferdinand Rex, rammed head-on into her. The Re d'Italia sank, and so did many of her sister ships, while the rest fled for safety.

That night, Admiral Tegethoff gave a victory dinner to his officers. He praised his men for their success, despite "scanty preparations begun too late." The Naval Office in Vienna heard of this and took it as an affront. When the admiral's voucher came in, the cost of his victory feast was deducted. He was removed from command and given a prolonged leave of absence.

Tegethoff's portrait appears on one of Austria's stamps, a 60-cent issue which she issued in 1935 in honor of her great hero.

MAGICIANS WIN HIGH AWARDS

Victoria Delegates Get Prizes at Seattle Convention

Bringing with him the Houdini Trophy, highest award of the annual convention of the Pacific Coast Association of Magicians, William Harkness returned to Victoria yesterday from Seattle.

The trophy is the only piece of magicians' equipment ever let out of Houdini's great collection, at present in the possession of Mrs. Houdini who attended the Seattle convention and personally made the presentation to Mr. Harkness.

The award takes the shape of a pair of saved handcuffs, engraved with Houdini's signature, and mounted in a glass case. It is a trophy coveted by magicians all over the world.

Mr. Harkness brought three other prominent magicians to this city with him. They are Carly S. Fleming, wealthy Los Angeles man who is the present president of the association; Dr. J. McManus, president-elect, who will take the chair at next year's convention in Reno, Nevada; and Dr. Jack Blackard.

They were scheduled to attend the Gyro Club luncheon at the Empress Hotel today. This evening they will go to the officers' mess of the Fifth (B.C.) Coast Brigade, where they will give an informal entertainment.

Several other Victoria magicians returned with fine prizes, for which there was keen competition. Frank Merryfield, Cornish Wizard, won the Elks Club award, consisting of a much-prized magical effect, presented by Jack Blackard, as first prize for card effects. He also secured second prize for transformations and productions, and was highly complimented on his clean manipulations by Mrs. Houdini. Ernest Crockett won first prize in the cigarette manipulations and also received a fine hand from the large audience.

Each of the Victoria magicians competed in different classes. On behalf of the Wizards of the West and the Victoria Magical Society, Mr. Harkness and Mr. Merryfield invited all visiting magicians to pay a short visit to Victoria before returning to their homes.

Mayor Attends Orange Picnic

Sports Programme and Entertainment Held in Beacon Hill Park

With Mayor David Leeming as guest of honor, members of the Loyal Orange Association gathered in Beacon Hill Park on Saturday afternoon for their annual picnic in observance of the anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne.

The picnic this year was held on a smaller scale than previously, in view of the elaborate entertainment arranged by the Vancouver Orangemen.

Mayor Leeming was introduced by Worshipful County Master J. P. Dickson and the close of his address was given by Brother H. A. Hunt.

Worshipful Brother Hunt also presided over the sports programme, which was one of the principal events of the afternoon's entertainment.

Worthy Sister Mrs. W. Baker and Sister Mrs. A. Edmonds were in charge of the serving of refreshments.

Gives Talk On Color Process

Howard Edwards Explains to Y.M.C.A. Club Production of Photographs

An instructive lecture on color photography given by Howard Edwards, a tour of the Dominion Experimental Farm's laboratories took up the greater part of the weekly meeting of the Y.M.C.A. Camera Club.

Mr. Edwards' talk on color-transfer process was illustrated, step by step, by actual demonstration. Several color prints on view aptly proved the ability of the lecturer. Previous to the lecture the members and visitors were taken on a tour of the plant by Mr. Edwards and Mr. Reid.

Dr. Wm. Newton, supervisor of the farm, gave a brief talk on plant disease and the camera's part in the practical end of the work. He impressed upon those present the great value of photography as an aid in man's endless battle against plant disease. He stated, through close study and the inoculation of plants, man was now able to find remedies for many of his ills, without recourse to animal experimentation.

Mr. Donald Woods proposed the vote of thanks to Dr. Newton, Mr. Edwards and Mr. Reid.

A Boston company that manufactures caustic "sewing thread" for surgical use has installed a sterile unit where the thread is put through its processes in air conditioned rooms and sterilized in electric ovens.

NO TRUMP IS DISASTROUS

Player Holding Long Run of Clubs and Poor Entries Errs in Bidding and Goes Down Three Tricks

By WM. E. McKENNEY
Some bridge hands are interesting because they have been played at decisive moments, or because they have been the means of deciding important events. Such a hand is the one I reproduce today, in which one team, by reaching the correct contract, won an important team-of-four event.

The others, acting on the old adage that "no trump is cheapest," reached the wrong contract and failed through really superlative defence put up by opponents.

Today's Contract Problem

South is playing the contract at six—no trump. The opening lead is won by declarer with the ace. Only 11 tricks can be counted. Would declarer be wise in leading a small heart to dummy's queen, hoping to sneak through that extra trick?

wise to gamble on no trump, particularly as he lacked a fit in his partner's suit and was short of certain cards of entry.

North, holding six hearts, and only one sure trump, decided not to open his long suit, fearing the heart distribution that actually existed, which he led the deuce of spades, which was won in dummy with the queen.

Declarer now led a club, and South did not win the first trick. When the suit was continued, he played the ace. Then he led a heart, and West was down three at his contract of three no trump.

Ziegfeld Ex-girls Still Glorified

New York, July 13.—Glamorous pages of the past were reopened the other night when pretty alumnae of the Ziegfeld Girls' Club met for their dinner dance at Sherry's. There was Rita Naldi, the oldest showgirl of the circle . . . and Ada May, who since she left the Great Ziegfeld's employ has become a star in her own right on the comedy stage . . . Faith Bacon, once a Ziegfeld eyelet, now a fan dancer in nude rivalry with Sally Rand, was there . . . and Gypsy Rose Lee, who has "graduated," as she puts it, to being a striptease on the bluesque runways.

Popular Pair Honeymoon In South

Noble-Ward
Nuptials Saturday
At Esquimalt

In a charming setting of ferns and a medley of summer flowers, including roses, Shasta daisies and Canterbury bells, the wedding took place in the Queen of Peace Church, Esquimalt, Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, when Teresa, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Ward, 658 Langford Street, became the bride of Mr. Leo Howard Noble, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Noble, 1333 Fairfield Road.

Miss Wanda Spencer presided at the organ, and during the signing of the register Miss Betty O'Leary sang a solo. The service was conducted by Rev. Father A. B. Wood. Given in marriage by her father, the dark-haired bride made a lovely picture in her wedding gown of ruffled pink silk net over taffeta, which was worn with a veil of palest pink net arranged beneath a halo of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of sweetheart roses, white carnations and sweet peas.

The bride's sister, Mrs. J. McMillan, was matron of honor in a gown of cream beige net, finished with a blue sash, and worn with a blue hat and matching accessories, carrying a bouquet of pink snapdragons and blue sweet peas, and the maid of honor was the groom's sister, Miss Audrey Noble, in a dainty frock of mauve net over taffeta and a matching mohair hat with mauve accessories. Acting as bridesmaid was Miss Isabelle Sloan, in a frock of Nile green lace and net and a small hat of green mohair, and both she and Miss Noble carried bouquets of pink sweet peas and snapdragons. Mr. Victor Young was best man, and the ushers were Mr. Donald Ward, brother of the bride, and Mr. Robert Hawkes.

LARGE RECEPTION

Pink and green featured the decorations in the church hall for the reception which followed the service, when a large number of guests were welcomed by the parents of the young couple, who stood beneath an arch of ferns and roses. A three-tiered wedding cake centered the tea table. Mrs. Ward wore a floral gown of chiffon crepe on a blue background, and a picture hat of vintage red, and Mrs. Noble was in a pale blue-flowered frock with hat and accessories in darker shade, and they both wore corsage bouquets of white carnations and maidenhair fern.

After a motor trip to the Southern States, for which the bride left in a pale yellow frock and a three-quarter length sports coat in a darker shade, a yellow straw turban trimmed with brown and brown accessories, and a corsage bouquet of gardenias, Mr. and Mrs. Noble will reside in Victoria.

Among the many beautiful gifts received was a silver coffee service from the associates of the bride and groom at Hickman Tye Hardware Company and a handsome mantel clock.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Leo Sweeney and family and Mrs. O. D. Atkinson and her daughter, Marion, of Vancouver.

Weddings
FRASER—MOLLETT
The marriage of Edna Maude Mallett, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Mallett of Fulford Harbor, South Salt Spring Island, to John Arthur Fraser, eldest son of Mrs. C. Menzies and the late A. G. Fraser of Trout Lake, B.C., took place quietly recently at Nelson, B.C., in St. Saviour's Church, the Ven. Archdeacon F. H. Graham performing the ceremony. After a honeymoon spent at Kootenay points Mr. and Mrs. Fraser will make their home at the Fawn Inn.

HOLMES—MCKEE
The marriage took place in Toronto on Friday evening of Aileen Anne, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James McKee, 1250 Victoria Avenue, Oak Bay, to Mr. Richard Holmes, only son of Mr. R. Holmes, 1114 Richardson Street, Victoria, and the late Mr. Holmes.

After their honeymoon trip, Mr. and Mrs. Holmes will reside in Toronto, where Mr. Holmes is engaged in bacteriological research work with the Research Foundation of Queen's University.

At Brother's Wedding By "Transcription"
New York, July 13.—Grace Moore went to her brother's wedding in Connecticut the other day by electrical transcription.

When the final organ note pealed away in the rose garden, the guests suddenly heard the opera diva's voice from somewhere in the arbor, sweetly saying "Hello, Jimmy," and greetings for the bride, Marion. Then she sang "I Love Your Truly," followed by several words of congratulation. She signed off with "I'll see you both in Paris."

The voice vanished and it was explained to the guests that the recording had sent the record from Paris because she could not come back in time.

Newly-weds To Live At Duncan

Miss Bessie Archer
Bride Of Fairbridge Teacher

At an interesting wedding in the vestry of First United Church on Saturday evening, at 7.30 o'clock, Rev. E. W. Horton united in marriage Elizabeth Violet (Bessie), only daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Irving Archer of Victoria, and Mr. Arthur Howard Plows, youngest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Plows, also of Victoria.

The bride was given away by her uncle, Mr. V. Mott Rolfe, and wore a charming frock of pale green lace and a model hat of stitched silk turned off her face, and carried a bouquet of Opheelia roses, white carnations, lavender sweet peas and maidenhair fern, showered with sweetheart roses. Attending her was Mrs. Neil Grant, the bridegroom's sister, in a frock of beige lace over pink, and a pale pink hat, who carried an arm bouquet of pink carnations, pink snapdragons and pale blue delphiniums. Mr. Grant supported the groom.

A reception was held later at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rolfe, Montrose Avenue, when relatives and a few intimate friends were welcomed. The hostess wore a smart gown of blue and white chiffon and a grey hat, and a corsage bouquet of lavender sweet peas and pink roses. The bride and bridegroom stood beneath a rose-trimmed arch, from which hung a bell of orange blossoms, to receive the congratulations of their friends.

Supper was served from a table decorated with mauve sweet peas and tall pink tapers in silver candelabra, with the three-tiered wedding cake in the dominant position. Assisting in serving were the Misses Thelma Richards, Pat Jones, Doris Dalby, Evelyn Goddard, Doris Grant and Thelma Rolfe.

Among the many handsome gifts was a table lamp from the Shawinigan Lake public school, with which both the bride and groom were formerly associated, a set of cocktail glasses from a company, 2nd Battalion Canadian Scottish, of which the bridegroom is a lieutenant, and a sandwich toaster from the Cobble Hill teachers.

After a honeymoon on the mainland, for which the bride left in a hand-knit cream-pearl dress, a cream coat and felt hat, finished with a shoulder spray of pink roses and swansonia, Mr. and Mrs. Plows will reside at Fairbridge Farm School, Duncan, where the bridegroom is principal of the school.

Mothers On Olympic Team

By MARY ELIZABETH PLUMMER

Associated Press
New York, July 13.—Motherhood "has made me run faster," was the new slant on maternity given today by a U.S. Women's Olympic team hurdler who is the mother of a two and a half year old girl.

"I've never run so fast in my life as I have since my baby was born," said Mrs. Anne O'Brien, a thin, serious-faced athlete from Huntington Beach, Calif.

Another young mother on the women's Olympic track and field team, Mrs. Gertrude Wilhelmson of Puyallup, Wash., who also has a daughter two and a half years, said maternity had enabled her to hurt the discus and javelin further.

"I'm better than I was before," she said. "I feel so free. I feel 100 per cent."

The two women, found showing snapshots of their babies to each other while the track and field team sat at breakfast, said they would like to "black the eyes of people who say that women are no good in athletics after they have had children."

"I have more strength than I used to," exclaimed Mrs. O'Brien.

Mrs. Wilhelmson said of husband, Andrew, who works in a Tacoma, Wash., flour mill:

"He's the one that encourages me along. He goes to the field when I'm practicing, just to help and encourage."

She said her physician told her too. He used to be a track man and that is how she got started.

together with good wishes from a host of friends far and wide. In the afternoon, at the home of Mrs. William McCague, 2608 Graham Street, the Quinra Circle of the Centennial United Church, of which Mrs. McConnell is the oldest member, entertained with a birthday tea in Mrs. McConnell's honor. The tea table, with its roses flanked by yellow tapers, was presided over by Mrs. J. Stewart and Mrs. W. Bryant, and assisting in serving were Mrs. E. McCague, Mrs. W. Corbille, Mrs. M. B.C., and Mrs. Elder. Presentation was made of a large box of chocolates to the guest of honor. An attractive programme included songs by Mrs. C. W. Williams, Miss Agnes Spencer and Mrs. E. M. Mowbray. Mrs. Paul Green accompanying, while Mrs. McCague accompanied the guests with recitations.

HOUSE OF SHADOWS

by Ida R. Gleason

BEGIN HERE TODAY

CLAIRE FOSDICK sets out to drive to the lonely mountain home left her by her mother, and to find out whether she is really the girl who was once so beautiful, and who was once so loved by her mother.

Her car is wrecked by a log across the road. PAT MAGAN, an old friend, and BOB STEEL, young engineer, arrive on the scene and take Claire to the mountain house where BOB SPRATT and his sister, SUSIE, are the caretakers.

Claire sets her curious arrow carved on the wall of an upstairs bedroom, and lamp in the study, the arrow to the study. A sudden light shows her the lamp.

Next morning BOB SPRATT disappears. BOB STEEL sets out for the village and is found seriously injured.

HANNAH, Claire's housekeeper, arrives. Pat, trying to solve some of the mysteries of the place, wanders into a deserted mine. An unseen opponent attacks him and Pat falls. When he regains consciousness he hears a tapping noise which he follows. Nick Baum arrives at the old house.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER IX

Claire looked at Nick earnestly. "I wasn't hiding from you," she assured him. "I just wanted a chance to think things out, get my equilibrium and—"

"I hope I came in for a passing thought, Claire."

"Lots of them," she answered. "But I'm worried about so many things."

He slipped an arm about her shoulders and drew her to him. "Poor little girl, if you could put me on the list of things you are anxious about!"

Claire gently pulled herself away, and forced a light laugh. "Maybe you're there already, Nick." Then she added, "Of course you'll stay for supper?"

"Sorry, but I'm on my way to the village. I stopped here for some information and hoping to find the sweetest girl in all the world. I thought Spratt might be able to tell me something about this fellow I'm after."

"Ed's not here just now." A shadow passed over Claire's face. "But maybe Susie would know."

"It's not important enough to bother her," he waved the suggestion aside. "Interesting old place you've got here. Your father told me that a collector his brother was."

"Yes, Uncle Lyman went in for books and all sorts of things. You can see his library was quite extensive, for those days." She walked to the radiator and picked up the little red volume of poems.

But Nick Baum was plainly not interested in books. Instead he eyed the big mahogany desk that stood near the window. That was why he did not notice the expression on Claire's face when she glanced down at the book she held. She had opened it to the place where Lyman Fosdick had written his original stanza. Quickly she closed the volume and put it under her arm as she crossed to the big bay window.

"Uncle was very fond of this old place—and no wonder," she said softly. "It's very beautiful, isn't it?"

Nick gathered her, book and all, into his arms, and kissed her. "Not half so beautiful as you are, Claire," he whispered. "Say you're glad I came, for I've got to go now."

She smiled up at him. "I think I'm always glad to see you, Nick."

After she had waved good-bye to him from the doorway and watched him start off down the winding road she closed the door carefully and again opened the little book she still carried.

On the page on which Lyman Fosdick had written the verse, the outline of a broken arrow could be seen, its outlines already fading as the cool air struck it. She was certain

It had not been there when she first saw the page. Then she remembered that she had left the book on the radiator shelf. "Ed," the "warming" brought out the mark? She'd heard that certain kinds of invisible ink are affected by heat. Claire walked to the window and looked again at the giant pine. Was there something concealed beneath it or did its branches serve as a hiding place?

She eyed the bookcase with new interest. The arrow pointed that way, and the arrow on the wall of Lyman Fosdick's bedroom also indicated the bookcase there. She remembered now that another copy of this same book was on the shelves. "Jewels of Verse." Could there be a connection between the poems and the lost jewel?

Half amused at her own imagination, she examined the bookcase, moving each volume and running her hands testily along the sides of the case itself. Once she fancied she heard a faint click, but could not be sure, and at last she gave up her search and started upstairs to find Hannah.

As she passed a small window halfway up the stairway, she glanced out, then stopped abruptly and looked again. Down the sloping hillside bobbed a big bush she could see Nick Baum talking to Susie. The woman watched and followed him away from the house, or had he just happened to meet her? Claire was not aware that Nick knew the housekeeper.

Susie's hand rested familiarly on Nick's arm and he was looking down at her, apparently absorbed in what she was saying. As Claire watched, Nick glanced at his watch, and evidently told Susie the time. Then, to Claire's untold amazement, he took the woman tenderly in his arms and kissed her. The girl felt her cheeks redden at the remembrance of a similar kiss given her such a short time ago.

Evidently Susie and Nick Baum did know each other—very well indeed. There was nothing casual or new about this meeting, Claire was sure of that.

Susie again. At every turn of the way the baby-faced housekeeper seemed to appear. Claire decided it was time to discuss matters openly with Susie and find out what she knew about several things—Ed, Dallas, her unexplained appearance from the apparently empty root cellar, and now Nick Baum. Where could the woman possibly have known him? Nick had said he had been at the House of Long Shadows only once before. Claire had never had occasion to doubt his word on anything. Wasn't he almost her accepted suitor?

Almost—but not quite. Thoughts of Pat came crowding into her mind as she went upstairs to talk to Hannah.

As though Claire's need of him penetrated even to the dark tunnel where he lay sleeping, Pat roused up, shook himself like a dog, and once more lighted a wooden flare. His movements were suddenly alert and sure. If he ever expected to dig his way out of this infernal place, he'd better be at it—though, for all he knew, he might be excavating into the side of the mountain.

Yet there had been that tapping noise which had led him in this direction. He hadn't heard the sound for some time now. Experimentally he tapped the wall at regular intervals, as nearly as possible like the noise he had heard. At first he could hear nothing. Then, to his joy, an answer came back. Someone had heard him. But who could it be? Speculations raced through Pat's mind as he put every ounce of his strength into the task before him.

ing soda to a pint of water helps cool the skin and prevent irritation. The baby should not have a hot bath. A lukewarm bath is just as cooling, through evaporation of the water from the surface of the body, as one which is considerably colder. After the skin of the baby is dried, it may be powdered liberally with one of the good baby powders. Then, as has been mentioned, the child may be dressed in a light cotton undershirt and diaper, and allowed to kick, or to fall asleep.

There has been a question whether babies should be permitted to swim in the sea or in fresh water. Children under five years of age should not be allowed in the water. Children under ten should not go into the water more than once daily, and the water should be warm. It is important to protect the nose, throat, and ears of children, because of the possibility of infection.

A child finds it exceedingly pleasant to play on the beach and to paddle in the shallow water near the shore. On the other hand, this may be dangerous for small children if there are waves and undertow.

ECONOMIC INDEX OFF

Ottawa, July 13 (Canadian Press).—A slight decline was registered in the economic index maintained by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics in the week ended July 4, but the index is still well above last year's level. It stands at 107.7, compared with 106.4 the previous week and 99.3 in the same week last year.

The railway freight movement was heavier, the index advancing 2 1/2 per cent. Minor increases were shown in wholesale prices and in the inventory index of bond yields. The decline of 7.7 per cent in bank clearings was the main influence in depressing the general index. Slight recession was shown in common stock prices, the index being down one-half point. The net price of a barrel of oil fell 1 1/2 per cent, a decline of 5 per cent from the price of June 11.

Again and again, mechanically, his arms swung the pick, though each time it was with lessening effort. Strange visions began to swim before his eyes, and obscure his sight. Impatiently he brushed his hand across his forehead. He took to counting the strokes aloud, the very sound of his own voice helping a little.

Claire's image swam from the blackness of the yawning hole. How utterly lovely she was. "Fifty, fifty-one, fifty-two. Claire, I'm coming to you, dear! I'm coming to tell you, what I—"

At that very moment Claire was standing outside the root cellar, wondering what she should do next. Susie had not reappeared after her interview with Nick Baum, although it was now near supper time.

When Claire had rushed to Hannah with her breathless story of finding the broken arrow mark in the book, Hannah had listened rather skeptically. Since by that time the sign was no longer visible, the older woman was inclined to dismiss the whole thing as another fantastic whim of Lyman Fosdick's.

But the report about Nick Baum and Susie enlisted her liveliest interest. "So," Hannah snorted. "Maybe you'll see what kind of a rattle-snake that woman is. I always said she'd do anything. But where in time could she have met up with Nick Baum?"

"I can't imagine," Claire answered. "He told me he'd only been here once before."

"You don't think for one minute that Susie is stationary, do you? That gal's a roamer, and don't you ever forget it! If Ed didn't hold her down, no tellin' where she'd end up. She—"

Hannah's harangue was interrupted by a moan from Bob Steele.

Both women rushed to his side. For an instant his eyelids fluttered open and his lips moved. Claire leaned nearer, then after a minute looked up. "Hannah, I do believe he's sleeping more naturally. He seemed quite rational when he opened his eyes. I think he wanted to speak to me."

But after waiting for some time, there seemed no further change in the patient, so Claire went to the kitchen to search for Susie. Unable to find her, she had gone on to the cellar. Now she made her way slowly down the stone steps into the darkness below. She would light the lamp and try again to solve the mystery of the place.

Holding the glowing lamp, she looked around the cellar room. There were the usual boxes and barrels standing in orderly rows. Susie might be flitting, but no one could deny that she was a good housekeeper. Claire moved toward the shadowy end of the room and suddenly stopped. Regularly, evenly, came sounds of something beating against that side of the wall. She went over and laid her ear against it. There could be no doubt about it now. Someone or something was digging back of that wall. Was that the tapping she had heard in Lyman Fosdick's library and in the bedroom directly above? This part of the cellar was almost underneath the roots of the pine tree outside the library window.

A cold sweat broke out on the girl's forehead. Could it be Ed—alive or dead? Or the white miner, delving at his ghastly diggings? The lamp in her hand suddenly dimmed. She looked down at it in terror, and saw that it was empty. She simply could not stay there, listening to those horrible sounds in the dark. In panic she rushed up the cellar steps.

Bruce Humber Selected Member Of Canadian Olympic Team

THE SPORTS MIRROR

By PETE SALLAWAY

MICKEY COCHRANE is due to re-join the Detroit Tigers in a short time. Cochrane says he will resume catching, but those closest to the fiery manager and the Detroit situation are of the opinion that it will not be for long, if at all. Cochrane's health comes first, and for some time before his breakdown it was obvious the combined duties of chief executive and manager were much too heavy.

So Vice-president Cochrane is expected to turn over the managerial reins to Delmar Davis Baker, at the conclusion of the current campaign.

Baker, who has carried on so ably in the absence of his chief, formerly caught for Detroit. The Oregon farmer developed Schoolboy Rowe, Hank Greenberg and other Tigers while managing the club's Beaumont Texas League farm. Returning to Detroit as a coach, he became known as the foremost detector of opponents' signs in the game.

Cochrane has been traveling on his nerve since 1931, according to Connie Mack.

"Mickey was a sick man in the world series that fall," reveals the venerable leader of the Philadelphia Athletics. "He really should not have been in the lineup, but keeping him in the dugout would not have helped him any. He would have burned up just as much energy there as he did on the field."

It now develops that Cochrane has suffered sinking spells for the last two years.

Cochrane, like Frank Leroy Chance and numerous great players, generals, simply could not stand reverse. He could not leave a losing game in the clubhouse. When the Tigers dropped tough ones in Detroit, Mickey frequently got up in the middle of a sleepless night and drove his car aimlessly for three or four hours.

Cochrane's crackup is something in the way of additional evidence that a manager, particularly a playing one, requires a buffer in an executive capacity.

Instead of engaging a general or business manager, when Frank J. Navin died, Walter O. Briggs, who succeeded to the presidency of the Detroit club, boosted Cochrane's salary $12,000 a year and elected to place the entire burden upon the star's already sagging shoulders.

Greenberg's holdout siege was the first headache of Cochrane, the executive. Cochrane, the popular leader of the two previous years, had to answer his men direct on money matters, and then be one of them on the field. Greenberg's injury, the bogging down of costly Al Simmons and other trials and tribulations preyed heavily upon Cochrane's mind.

The Tigers were in the throes of a protracted losing streak when Cochrane was forced to leave for the mountains of Wyoming and a complete rest. Simmons was benched for failing to hit a day or two after his chief departed. Rowe had a sore arm and little Tommy Bridges had not struck his stride.

JOE EFFA IN FINAL ROUND

Victoria Wrestler Makes Brilliant Showing in Canadian Trials

Montreal, July 13.—The selection committee of the Canadian Olympic team studied the performances of four wrestling stars today. There was no telling, however, who the committee would choose for the trip to Berlin.

Crowned Canadian champions at the second night of trials Saturday, Ted McKinley and Joe Effa, Toronto; Vern Pettigrew, Regina, and Howie Thomas, Montreal, awaited the conclusion of trials tonight for the committee's decision.

Left to decide the championships of the remaining three classes were Terry Evans, Toronto, and Joe Effa, Victoria, at 174 pounds; Cliff Worthing, Toronto, and Eddie Ferguson, Montreal, at 191 pounds; and Bill Scott, London, Ont., and George Chiga, Regina, heavyweights.

With the survivors of the preliminary rounds, the committee will select three falls were scored in fourteen

Victoria Sprint Star Is One Of Five B.C. Aces Named

Will Go to Berlin With McPhee, Limon, Haley and Margaret Bell

M'KINNON CAN GO AS COACH

By ELMER DULMAGE

Montreal, July 13.—When all Canada's Olympic track and field chances have been sifted and sorted, the fact stands out that twenty-eight-year-old Dr. Phil Edwards is as close to being a prospective winner as any of them. Phil will make his third Olympic appearance in Berlin next month.

A favorite in the 1928 games, but a longshot in 1932, the slender British Guianan scored points for Canada both times, and he has weathered the years of competition to come back again. This time he will be among the favorites again for the 800 metres. Edwards was twenty and a student in accounting at New York University when he won a place on the 1928 Canadian Olympic team. Now he is a graduate in medicine of McGill University and planning to spend the next eighteen months in post-graduate work here.

Only Howie McPhee's sensational sprint victories and the twin wins of Johnny Loring could be placed beside Phil's effort in the two-day trials that finished in Molson Stadium Saturday.

The selectors named ten men and six women for the Berlin trip, and advised all others they could go along if part or all of their expenses were put up privately. The outstanding selections were McPhee, Loring and Edwards.

REAL SPEEDSTERS

The Vancouver sprinter, apparently as fast as Percy Williams was in 1928 when he won both the 100 and 200-metre dashes at Amsterdam, set a new Canadian record of 21.5 seconds in the 200 final, breaking Bobby Kerr's twenty-eight-year-old record of 21.8.

McPhee made his run on a heavy track and in a drizzle of rain. Even Jesse Owens' new world record of twenty-one seconds, made Saturday in the United States trials, does not seem outside of McPhee's reach.

Trouncing Lee Orr, Vancouver, and Bruce Humber, Victoria, with ease, the twenty-year-old student of University of British Columbia burst through the rain for his sprint triumph. Earlier he won the 100 metre in 10.8 with Humber second and Orr third.

Then Loring held the spotlight, coming down the stretch with a rush to steal the 400-metre final from Marshall Limon, Vancouver, and Bill Fritz, Toronto, in 48.7 seconds. Loring won the 400-metre hurdles Friday.

In the 800-metre final, Edwards reeled off the distance in 1:53.6 without being pressed.

The time was a second and six-tenths slower than his own Canadian record, but it was only about four seconds away from time good enough for an Olympic title.

Only Bill Dale, Victoria, challenged Phil on the stretch and Dale's sprint fell twelve yards short.

Defeat of the favored Allen Meagher in the women's 100-metre dash final by Hilda Cameron, Toronto, was the biggest upset. Miss Meagher was left at the start and had to come from behind to get second and a place on the Olympic team. The first place in the final, Miss Cameron, Miss Meagher, Jeannette Delson, and Dot Brookshaw, Toronto, were selected.

Margaret Bell, Vancouver, winner of the high jump at five feet one and three-quarter inches, and Miss Taylor, were also named.

Archie McKinnon, pudgy, good-natured coach from Victoria, will be appointed coach if money for his trip can be raised privately. McKinnon's athletes from British Columbia stole the show of speed in the trials.

semi-finals and none in four finals, experts refused to guess who would draw the coveted Olympic berths.

ONE UPSET

Only one upset marked the night's programme, Schmeiter spilling Canadian, British Empire Games champion Harry Peace, Toronto, at 198 pounds. It was so close the judges conferred for more than ten minutes before awarding the verdict to Schmeiter.

The coming final between Evans and Effa promised a stirring fight. Evans, British Empire Games champion in 1934, scored his semi-final victory over Jimmy Walker, Montreal.

His opponent gave him the edge over Winnet Watson, Toronto.

Canada's Track And Field Team

Montreal, July 13.—Here's the Canadian Olympic track and field team:

Men: 100 and 200 metre dash—Howie McPhee, Vancouver, and Bruce Humber, Victoria.

400-metre dash—Johnny Loring, University of Western Ontario, London, and Marshall Limon, Vancouver.

800-metre dash—Phil Edwards, Montreal.

1600-metre dash—Johnny Loring.

100-metre hurdles—Larry O'Connor, Toronto.

800 metres—Phil Edwards, Montreal.

Broad jump and hop, step and jump—Sammy Richardson, Toronto.

High jump—Joe Haley, Trail, B.C.

Pole vault—Sylvanus Apps, Toronto.

CANADIAN IN BISLEY WIN

Sergt. J. W. A. Sharpe, Montreal, Captures Alexandra Challenge Cup

Canadian Press

Bisley Camp, Surrey, July 13.—Sergt. J. W. A. Sharpe, Montreal, today brought Canada her first victory in the current National Rifle Association's meet at Bisley, winning the Alexandra Challenge Cup.

Sergt. Sharpe scored a possible 50 in this service rifle competition, fired on the century range with ten shots at the 600-yard distance. It was the main event in which the Dominion marksmen were competing as the second and final week of the empire meet began.

Rain fell all day yesterday and weather conditions remained treacherous today. Outshooters at Bisley said it was the wettest N.R.A. meeting for nearly twenty years. Competitors frequently lay in pools of water and many score boards were washed out.

Major C. E. Eches, secretary of the N.R.A., calculated that at least 200 regular entrants stayed away, involving loss in entrance fees of around $1,000. Sixty fewer than usual were entered for the King's Prize, he estimated.

The Canadian team had a comparatively easy time today.

The Alexandra, a service rifle competition, consists of ten shots at 600 yards. Following Sergt. Sharpe among the Canadians were Lieut. H. Storror, Yarmouth, N.S., and Lance-Sergt. N. K. Martin, Ottawa, with 47s.

Other Canadian scores: Sergt. J. Kier, Vancouver, and Sergt. A. Farnell, Vernon, B.C., 46; Capt. S. W. Graham, Toronto, Regimental Sergt.-Major J. Kiddle, Toronto; Sergt. R. S. Potter, Hamilton; Capt. L. J. Stiver, Ottawa, 44; Major R. S. Harrison, Company Sergt.-Major H. Rusk, Ottawa; Capt. W. Storrick, Winnipeg, 43; Sergt. J. S. Douglas, Verdun, Que., Staff Q.M.S. P. V. Shepherd, Stevenson Place, Ont.; Major T. Spittal, Montreal, 42; Lieut. F. J. Martinson, La Tuque, Que., 41; Guardsman D. S. Fraser, Ottawa, 40.

A bearing apple tree exhibited by the Royal Horticultural Society, Westminster, England, was only 19 inches high. One year old, the tree had been raised from a seed and bore four apples when the tree was weighed of 6 1/2 pounds.

COSMETIC PROHIBITION

Evidently alarmed by the growing usage of artificial beauty aids in the late eighteenth century, the staid English Parliament of the period actually enacted the following law: "All women, whatever age, rank, profession or degree . . . that shall from and after such act . . . betray into matrimony any of His Majesty's subjects, by the scents, paints, cosmetics, washes, artificial teeth, false hair, Spanish wool, iron stays, hoops, high-heeled shoes, bolstered hips, shall incur the penalty against witchcraft and like misdemeanors and that the marriage upon conviction shall stand null and void."

The law, so far as is known, was not rigidly enforced and some time after its enactment was shelved—probably to avoid the risk of a feminine revolution.

COMPASS NEEDLE

Strange as it seems, the North and South Magnetic Poles are continually shifting. As a consequence, the needle of a stationary compass is always moving in conjunction with the changing positions of the poles.

Even in a twenty-four-hour period the needle makes a slight movement from east to west and then returns. So great is the shift in position of the poles that the North Magnetic Pole is almost one full degree away from its location of 100 years ago.

SOMERSAULTING TRAVELER

Hydras are a low form of fresh-water protozoan, closely related to the sponges and corals. As a means of catching its prey, minute forms of animal life, the hydra has numerous small lassoes growing from its tentacles with which it captures and paralyzes its victim.

The hydra utilizes these same tentacles for its strange somersaulting method of travel.

New Westminster Soccer Champions

Royals Defeat North Shore 3 to 1 in Deciding Game of Dominion Cup Play-downs; Will Oppose Alberta Champions at Vancouver July 16 and 18

Vancouver, July 13.—British Columbia's hopes for Dominion soccer laurels this year rested today on New Westminster Royals, a band of stalwarts that thrice previously have brought the title to this province.

The team from the Fraser River city won the right to represent this province in inter-provincial play by defeating North Shore Uniteds, 3 to 1, Saturday, before 3,000 spectators, the largest soccer crowd gathered here for one game in the last five years.

Royals, who won the Dominion crown in 1928, 1930 and 1931, will launch this year's title hunt when they clash with the Alberta representatives here July 16 and 18.

First few minutes of the game saw North Shore jump into a one-goal lead on a penalty shot by Spencer, but Royals came right back, Coulter banging the sphere in on a pass from Harvey and Turner.

UPHILL BATTLE

From then on it was an uphill fight for North Shore—an uphill fight where they just could not seem to make any headway. In fact, except for the expert goalkeeping of their little keeper, Jack Rabbit, the Uniteds might have been buried under an even greater defeat.

Royals again scored a few minutes later, when Coulter scored on a penalty shortly after McGill of North Shore had handled the ball within the penalty area.

OLBS RETAIN CRICKET TITLE

Defeat Burrards to Win Vancouver Tourney Championship

Vancouver, July 13.—Vancouver Olbs defeated Vancouver Burrards by a margin of seven wickets Saturday to retain the championship they won last year, but it was the Victoria eleven that helped them do it.

Though they only placed fourth in the final standings, the islanders made a deciding factor in the destination of the silverware, for they defeated Burrards Thursday and then handed Vancouver Juniors a setback by a margin of 98 runs at Upper Brockton Saturday, preventing the latter from tying with Olbs for the championship.

The other visiting team, Vernon, finished in a blaze of glory with an 87-run victory over the Wednesday League eleven on the lower Brockton pitch.

PLAY OPENS IN NET MEET

Opening of the ninth annual Esquimalt invitation tennis tournament, saw an even dozen matches played on the Hillcrest Club's courts on Saturday.

The best match of the opening play saw E. Clarke extend T. Simmons. Armada men's singles champion, to three sets, 6-4, 2-6, 6-4.

Owing to rain, matches scheduled for yesterday were postponed. Play resumed today.

Results follow:

A. Lockley won from W. Petrie, 6-3, 6-4.

J. Kason won from R. McInnes, 6-1, 6-3.

HIGH JUMP MARK

Johnson, the favorite, and Albrighton, twenty-three-year-old Alabamian, electrified the capacity crowd by surpassing the two-year-old mark of 6 feet 9 1/2 inches, set by Walter Marty, Fresno, Calif.

Marty not only saw his record go by the boards, but he failed to do better than 6 feet 4 inches, and was shut off the lead.

Two successful athletes, Indiana's Don Lash, who won the 5,000 metres, and San Francisco's Bob Clark, who finished third in the broad jump, previously clinched berths in other events. Lash won the 10,000-metre final about a week ago at Princeton, while Clark qualified for the decathlon at Milwaukee.

Although such stalwarts as Glenn Cunningham in the 1,500, Forrest "Spec" Towns in the high hurdles, Glen Hardin in the 400-metre hurdles and 300-pound Jack Torrance in the shotput, all came through triumphantly in their decisive tests, the battle for Olympic places developed an unexpectedly heavy toll of casualties.

The 800-metre final, won by long-striding John Woodruff, twenty-one-year-old University of Pittsburgh negro runner, produced the most shocking upsets. Experts were amazed by Ben Eastman's inability to do better than sixth in an eight-man field.

Chasing Woodruff home, to clinch Olympic places, were Indiana's veteran Chuck Hornbostel, a member of the 1932 team, and North Carolina's Herry Williamson.

Brooklyn Defeats St. Louis Twice

Lowly Dodgers Knock Over National League Leaders 6 to 3 and 11 to 4; Dizzy Dean Out For Week Through Injury; Joe Bowman Hurls One-hit Game

When it comes to write the history of the 1936 big league baseball campaign, the "breaks" of the week-end just past may tell the story of the up-to-now tight and dizzy-National League race.

At any rate, if the gang from St. Louis misses out on the pennant, it can easily point to the events of those two days as the root of all the evil that befell it.

When Dizzy Dean was knocked out by Burgess Whitehead's line drive in Saturday's game with the New York Giants, it took from the Cards the one man who has done more than any other to keep them up in the race. He will be out for at least a week.

Just as if things were not bad enough, the daffy and docile Brooklyn Dodgers picked this same week-end to get tough, and used the Cards to prove it. They belted out a double header victory yesterday, 6 to 3 and 11 to 4, and just about knocked the Cards out of the league leadership.

With the fast-climbing Chicago Cubs breaking even with the Giants, winning a double header opener 4 to 2, and then dropping the nightcap 8 to 6, the Dodgers double trouncing of the Cards clipped the St. Louis lead to a half game.

Joe Bowman pitched a one-hit 4 to 0 shutout for Philadelphia in the opener of a twin bill, stretching Cincinnati's losing streak to six straight. In the second game, the Reds outlasted the Phils for eleven innings and a 4 to 3 decision.

The Boston Bees scored a 6 to 2 victory over Cy Blanton and the Pittsburgh Pirates, despite Arky Vaughan's one-man batting spree in which he clubbed out a double, triple and homer.

In the American League, the New York Yankees were finding the invading Chicago White Sox just as tough as the Cleveland Indians who had just left, and had to fight uphill to break even in a twin bill, winning the afterpiece 5 to 4 after Ted Lyons had shut them out 5 to 0 in the opener.

The Detroit Tigers continued the chase after the Yankees with a 7 to 2 verdict over the Philadelphia Athletics. Johnny Allen let the Boston Red Sox down with four hits for a 3 to 2 Cleveland win, and the lowly St. Louis Browns upset the fast-moving Washington Senators 4 to 3.

COAST LEAGUE

Seattle, the only first division club that was not kicked around considerably by lowly foes, found itself today back at the top of the Coast League standings, leading Oakland by a game and a half.

The tribe finished up a successful week in Los Angeles yesterday by splitting a pair with the Seraphs, losing the first game 4 to 1, and coming back in the nightcap to triumph, 3 to 2, to grab their fifth contest of the week.

Oakland succumbed to sterling San Diego pitching, and finished on the short end of 3 to 2, and 1 to 0 scores. San Francisco's Seals won the first from Portland 5 to 0, then had their five-game winning streak shattered in the second game 3 to 2.

The San Francisco Missions salvaged the odd game of the series from Sacramento by winning the closing contest 5 to 1, after dropping the opener 5 to 3.

Big Run of Spring Salmon Has Started At Saanich Arm

Harry Mann Gets Forty Pounder To Feature Big Day

With... of Association; Fishing Yesterday Best of Season

U.S. VISITOR HAS FINE LUCK

One forty and a half pounder, two weighing over thirty pounds, a half dozen topping the scales at twenty pounds and numerous others weighing in the neighborhood of ten to fifteen pounds, were the results of angling in Saanich Inlet yesterday, when one of the best fishing days of the season was enjoyed.

Harry Mann, ardent local fisherman, landed the biggest fish of the day when he secured a fighting forty-and-one-half pound spring salmon near the Deep Hole. Between the two nine fish were landed. The others weighed eighteen pounds, ten pounds and six and five pounds.

John Hall, fishing with F. E. W. Smith, secured a silver button when he reeled in a thirty-five-pound salmon near the Deep Hole. Between the two nine fish were landed. The others weighed eighteen pounds, ten pounds and six and five pounds.

Peter Jones, who is visiting here from Wabash, Indiana, has postponed his return trip for a few days following his success with rod and reel yesterday. Jones landed a thirty-one-and-a-half pound spring salmon and a twenty-and-one-half pounder to win a bronze and silver button. He was fishing from Hugh Creed's boat. He got five other small ones. The big fish took an hour and ten minutes to land, and he is having the fish packed in ice and sent home.

Ken Campbell secured a bronze button for catching a twenty-seven pounder off McCurdy's point. Tommy McPherson landed a bronze button fish while fishing with Dr. Hugh Clarke. His catch weighed twenty-six-and-a-half pounds.

Dr. Clarke landed an eighteen pounder. E. Frosty, Winters, who last year captured the diamond-studded gold button for the capture of the largest salmon in 1935, reeled in a twenty-one-and-a-half pound fish.

OTHER CATCHES
Other catches in the arm were: Ellbeck Wilson, four, eight to fourteen pounds; Charlie E. Wilson and Tom Dicks, fifteen each; Saturday, "Red" Shemilt and "Red" Laird six, the largest being fourteen pounds; Charles Kinney with a party of visitors from the prairies, nine, seventeen pounds down to eight-and-a-half pounds; Fred Smith and party, eight, largest fifteen pounds; Jack Gilbert with a party from Chemainus, headed by George Wilson, landed twelve fish, the biggest weighing fifteen pounds. Edgar "Red" Wells, four nice fish.

One heavyweight was landed yesterday off Oak Bay. Miss Mary Wood, Vancouver, secured a twenty-four-pound spring. She had thirty-five feet of line out when the fish struck. It was caught around Discovery Island.

Harry Mann's catch was on display today in front of Flimley and Ritchie's sporting goods store, while the Hall-Smith catch was on view at Roger Monteth's store.

Members of the V.A.S.C. Dominate Jubilee Gala at Vancouver Saturday

Vancouver, July 13.—Husky Bobby Mathewson, Victoria, today shared honors with Patricia O'Hara of the Vancouver Athletic Swimming Club as a result of the Golden Jubilee aquatic sports meet at Kitsilano pool Saturday.

The Victoria swimmer carried off the provincial championships in 200, 440 and mile events. Miss O'Hara won the same events in the women's class.

Mathewson had little trouble in winning the classic Wrigley mile and finished 200 yards ahead of second-place Jack Tyndley, Vancouver. Miss O'Hara was closely pushed by Eileen Boden but came in 100 yards in front with Margaret Bagaley of Vancouver in third position.

Diving titles were won by Vancouver swimmers, Bunty Harrington taking the women's event and Carl Bailey capturing the contest for men.

MOSS DOES WELL
Bobby Moss, Victoria, made a clean sweep of the freestyle junior races taking the 50, 100 and 220-yard events. He also won the 50-yard backstroke, 100-yard junior freestyle, stroke and 50-yard senior freestyle.

Yvonne Squires, Victoria, won the junior 50 and 100-yard breaststroke events and 100-yard senior breaststroke.

Tommy Martin, Victoria, won the junior 100-yard breaststroke.

The V.A.S.C. teams from Victoria won the women's 200-yard relay and women's 300-yard medley.

They Fly Through The Air With Greatest Of Ease

Steeplechase races are favorites of racing fans because every barrier the racers cross creates breath-taking suspense as the steeds hurdle through the air. This unusual picture, taken during a steeplechase at Melbourne, Australia, shows two horses in midflight across the fence, with the leader making a perilous landing that ended in a fall an instant later.

VICTORIA IN FINAL ROUND

Defeat Cowichan 127 to 71 in Cricket Knockout; Incogs and Five C's Win

Defeating Cowichan 127 to 71, at Duncan, on Saturday afternoon, Victoria Club cricketers advanced to the final of the annual knockout competition. Victoria will oppose the Albions in the final.

In matches played in Victoria the Incogs triumphed over the Victoria B squad at Macdonald Park, 123 for five wickets to 118, and the Five C's turned back the Albions at Beacon Hill, 187 for eight wickets to 128.

Anderson in Mat Victory
Defeats Pat Fraley By Odd Fall in Fast Wrestling Bout

Turning the tables on his opponent in the final round to secure the odd fall, Leo Numa Anderson, husky 220-pound wrestler from Seattle, defeated Pat Fraley, 225-pound Nebraska, Saturday evening in the main attraction on Promoter Fred Richardson's mat at the Tillamook gym.

Wrestling was clean and fast and clever in this bout and fans showed their appreciation with well-deserved applause.

Anderson gained the opening fall in the second session when he compelled Fraley to concede to a punishing cross-leg strangle. Fraley evened matters in the fourth round with an airplane spin and body slam. The Nebraska matman went to work on Anderson in the next round. He tossed him, arched, and, rising again, and picked him up for another airplane spin and body press, only to

Freddie Steele Is World Champ.

Tacoma Battler Lifts Middle-weight Boxing Crown By Handing Babe Risko Decisive Beating Over Fifteen Rounds; Had Easterner on Floor in First Round

Seattle, July 13.—Freddie Steele, new middleweight champion, was looked upon today as having put the "old wallop" back in the long-suffering 160-pound fighting division.

Steele won the title here Saturday night when he battered Eddie (Babe) Risko, Syracuse, N.Y., to the canvas for a six count in the first round and won a clean-cut fifteen-round decision.

It was the seventh time the championship had changed hands since Mickey Walker relinquished the crown five years ago.

Now it is in the hands of a "two-fisted fighting fool" and it is believed the Tacoma battler is capable of safely guarding the crown for many months to come.

Steele has whipped them all for four years, and in his six years of professional boxing has scored thirty-six knockouts in eighty-seven battles. He has beaten two former titleholders, Gorilla Jones and Vince Dundee, and has smashed Risko twice. He also has conquered such middleweights as Tony Fisher, Young Stuhley, Swede Berglund, Fred Apostoli, Bucky Lawless and Mike Payan.

One of the few top-notchers left is Ken Overlin, Jack Dempsey's protégé, and promoter Nate Druxman said today he would attempt to lure the easterner to Seattle.

In the meantime Freddie is to make his first appearance as champion in his home town, Tacoma. His manager, Dave Miller, said he felt Steele's Tacoma followers should be the first to see him in action as the titleholder, and that he had agreed to a non-title ten-round bout, probably in August.

"We don't know whether we ever will go east," said Miller. "We are ready to meet all comers but we are not going to run away from money like this." He was referring to the capacity crowd that witnessed the fight, and which promoter Druxman estimated at close to 30,000. Druxman said gate receipts were in the neighborhood of $65,000. Risko was guaranteed $26,000 and Steele $10,000.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The membership committee of the Y.M.C.A. will meet tonight in the association building, at 7 o'clock.

The monthly meeting of Naval Veterans Branch No. 42 of the Canadian Legion will be held in the clubrooms on Friday evening at 8 o'clock.

Vancouver Island Beekeepers will meet tomorrow evening at the home of J. T. Hepburn, 335 Poul Bay Road, at 7:30 o'clock.

Captain Archie Dale, formerly in charge of the Salvation Army in Fernie, B.C., has been transferred to Victoria, where he will take over the work of Adjutant John Sharp, it was announced today.

Theft of $30 from a dresser drawer in a bedroom on Saturday night, was reported to the city police by T. Jennings, 1211 North Park Street. Entrance was gained through the bedroom window, which was left open.

Saturday's street collection, made by the Sir Matthew Begbie Chapter I.O.D.E. for the purchase of cod liver oil for ill-nourished children, netted the sum of $153.39. The chapter is grateful to all who assisted by tagging, and to the generous public for contributions.

The annual picnic for members of the Old Men's Home, which was organized by the late Fred Landsberg and Dave Spencer fifteen years ago, will again be held at the Goldstream Falls, on Wednesday afternoon next. The party will leave the Old Men's Home at 1 o'clock and return to the city at 6:30.

A double-headed marigold and a double-headed cantaloupe flower were brought up to the newsmen of The Times today by Charlie Hill, twelve-year-old schoolboy, who lives at 1050 Southgate Street. Charlie says they were grown by Albert Hill, his eight-year-old brother, who raises quite a lot of cantaloupes every year.

A discouraging report from his farm in the Red River Valley, Manitoba, was received by Captain Burgess J. Gadsden, director of the Sunshine Inn here. His farm manager, A. Chisholm, says that if rain comes within two or three days only half a crop can be expected. Durum wheat is standing up to the drought best. Cereals wheat is a complete loss. Temperatures in that area are above 107.

A large crowd was present yesterday afternoon to hear the selections of the Canadian Legion Band, assisted by Miss Sheila Conway, at a band concert held at Beacon Hill Park. Miss Conway, singing to the accompaniment of the band, rendered that old favorite "Till the Boys Come Home," dedicated to the Vimy pilgrimage. A bouquet of flowers was presented Miss Conway following her contributions to the programme. The playing of the band was enjoyed by the large crowd.

ART TEACHER IS RETIRED

Donald S. Cameron Leaves City Service After Twenty-six Years

Donald S. Cameron, a member of the city teaching staff for twenty-six years, has been superannuated after a period of extensive service in art and technical work.

In retiring Mr. Cameron holds the unusual record of never having been absent from his post for a single day. He was employed for even half a day. Mr. Cameron first joined the school board staff in 1910, when he came here from Aberdeen, Scotland, where he was educated. In Scotland he specialized in art and technical work and his outstanding ability made him a distinct asset to the Victoria board's staff.

During his years as art supervisor he gave considerable assistance to promising art students to whom he paid much individual attention.

Mr. Cameron is a charter member of the Arts and Crafts Society and during his membership has held every executive office. He has also held leading positions with the Burns Club.

TO END MOVIE WEDNESDAY

Production of Sixth Central Films Picture to Start Next Week

"Vengeance of the Forest," fifth production of Central Films Limited here, should be completed by Wednesday if present weather conditions keep up, according to Kenneth J. Bishop, producer. The company plans to begin work on "Why Let 'Em Live?," starring Lyle Talbot, on July 22.

"This is the first really pretty day for weather that we have had for this picture," said Mr. Bishop this morning as he was driving out to the location at Royal Oak, where the company is at work today matching lumber shots with the few taken during the group's week at Cowichan Lake, when rain hampered successful work.

More than forty actors are at Royal Oak for today's shooting.

The production of "Why Let 'Em Live?" will be something of a new departure for Central Films, as it will be taken twice, once with the characters in B.C. Provincial Police uniform, for British quota and once in civilian dress, for the state proper costume for circulation in the United States.

Shriners Present Colorful Display

Victoria Extends Welcome to Patrols Reaching City En Route to Imperial Council Sessions in Seattle; Gizeh Band Parades For First Time in New Uniforms; Street Parade is Staged

Shriners presented a colorful display yesterday and today in passing through Victoria en route to the great convalescence in Seattle.

The parade which enlivened the business section of the city this afternoon, when the Gizeh Band and local shriners welcomed the Vancouver patrol and other nobles of the Ancient Arabic Order of the Mystic Shrine, is but a forerunner of the spectacular demonstrations which are being held in Seattle incident to the Sixty-second Imperial Council sessions there.

Presenting a brilliant splash of color in their new uniforms, the Victoria band of Gizeh Temple, led by Bandmaster James M. Miller, lined up at the Belleville Street docks when the boat arrived at 2:40 o'clock and extended a characteristic greeting to the visiting Shriners.

The Vancouver patrol was in charge of Captain Corrie. Apart from the Vancouver patrol today's visitors from the mainland included fezzed delegates from other sections of the continent who will take part in the Seattle convention.

GREAT SHOW

The local Shrine bandmen presented a dazzling show in their new uniforms. The uniform consists of a dark-green coat trimmed with gold, said, bright yellow vest with gold bands, and a Maple Leaf, golden sash, and a white scarf with gold and white and white calf leggings, surmounted by the Gizeh fez.

Line up at the dock entrance, the Shriner, with the Victoria band at their head, paraded into the city, the route taken being via Government, Yates and Vancouver Streets to the Shrine Temple on View Street.

Following a half-hour of patrol street exercises, refreshments were served at the temple, after which the Shriner marched, back to the docks to catch the 5 o'clock boat to Seattle.

Five Shrine groups passed through here from the mainland en route to Seattle yesterday from eastern Canada and the United States.

Leading Victoria Shriner joined the group and proceeded with it to Seattle yesterday afternoon, including Col. Don McGuffan, Dr. P. M. Bryant, J. W. Hudson and Leo A. Grogan, respectively.

The groups passing through Victoria Sunday included seventy-five members from the Acacia Temple of Richmond, Va.; forty from Aleppo Temple of Boston; twenty-five from Antioch Temple, Dayton, O.; fifteen from Anah Shrine, Bangor, Me.; and forty-five members of the Virginia and North Carolina Shrine.

Other temples represented here yesterday were the Carnack of Montreal and the Waverley of Vancouver.

George I. Warden, publicity commissioner, left with today's Shrine party with the intention of bringing a thousand Shriner back to visit Victoria this week.

Associated Press
Seattle, July 13.—The scintillating and pendant star ruled Seattle today as thousands of nobles of the Ancient Arabic Order of the Mystic Shrine poured into the city for the biggest convention here in many years.

Canadian steamships landed delegations from Carnack Temple, Montreal; Gizeh of Victoria, and Calgary's Al Azhar, while every stage line, air line and railroad brought added throngs. Between 4 o'clock and 2:30 o'clock Seattle's foot-weary Nile Temple band and patrol, assisted by other Pacific Northwest temple units, was scheduled to escort delegations from forty-seven temples from all over the land.

The Shrine sessions start tomorrow, and this was "Jesters' Day." The national court of the Royal Order of Jesters, an invitational secret organization within Shrine-dom, opened business sessions under Royal Director Louis B. Windsor, Grand Rapids, Mich.; royal leading man Esten A. Fletcher, Rochester, N.Y.; and the other officers christened with the titles of members of a theatrical troupe.

Little Finger Torn Off Girl's Hand

A painful accident caused by a ring, happened to a Victoria girl today. While playing tennis she slipped at one end of the net. A ring she was wearing on one of her little fingers caught on a hook in the post. As she fell her weight came on the hand and the finger was torn off. She returned to Victoria after the distressing experience, which is pointed to by tennis players as a warning against wearing any ornaments or garb capable of causing such injuries.

Psychic Racket Exposure Told

Caryl S. Fleming Tells How He Was Ordained Along With Penner's Duck

The inside story of the ordination of Joe Penner's duck as "Rev. Drake Gongoos, the Persian mystic of Beverly Hills," was told to the Gizeh Club at its luncheon today by Caryl S. Fleming, Hollywood, president of the Pacific Coast Association of Magicians, who was one of three men who exposed the racket of selling decorations of divinity in California.

Mr. Fleming showed the card of the "Spiritual Psychic Science Church, Incorporated," with which he himself was ordained as "Rev. Caryl Fleming, D.D., operating under the title of Swami Fleming, the Seer of the South Sierras." It cost him $15.

With his papers, Mr. Fleming is registered as entitled to conduct marriages, burials and christenings, and to demand half-price on trains, although he has never done so.

The investigation and exposure of the clairvoyant minister racket in California was conducted by Mr. Fleming and two friends, Walter McInnis and Mrs. McInnis, and past-potente Walter Logan and Mrs. Logan.

Standing in the Empress Hotel lobby this morning, attired in perfectly-creased white slacks and a leather wind-breaker jacket, waiting to go out on location with her husband, who has the leading role in the Central Films' production, "Vengeance of the Forest," Mrs. William Gargan was this morning telling the most hair-raising ghost stories of Hollywood, which she swears are true.

The stories concerned unusual events in homes which housed collections of curious brought from India and Egypt by Mrs. William Gargan and Douglas Fairbanks.

Some of the curious had the habit of wandering about the houses at night, falling off shelves with no provocation, and generally scaring the inhabitants, according to Mrs. Gargan.

Once again, California cars were thick around the Empress Hotel this morning, and California people occupied the majority of the space on the hotel list.

Among yesterday and today's arrivals were Mr. and Mrs. L. Adams, Berkeley; Mrs. M. F. Dozier, Oakland; Mrs. Nelson, Alameda; Mrs. H. J. McCord and their daughter, Los Angeles; and Mrs. R. W. Callaway, Los Angeles; Mr. and Mrs. B. Cameron, Hollywood; Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Clark, Oakland; Mr. and Mrs. F. Howard Jr., Walnut Creek; and Mrs. N. Rosenberg, Alhambra; daughter, San Francisco; H. S. Kohn, San Francisco; Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Miller, Long Beach; Mr. and Mrs. J. Kuhns, Long Beach; Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Pettet and Mrs. Pettet, San Francisco; Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Rutheigen, Long Beach; Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Mansfield, Beverly Hills; Mr. G. Vetter, Hollywood; and Mr. and Mrs. N. T. Shaw, Hollywood.

HOPE TRICK NEVER DONE
The famous Hindu rope trip, he said, had never been actually seen by anyone. It was always a case of "I heard someone who was told by..." There was a fund of $125,000 to be given to any man who could perform the trick in an open space.

Mr. Fleming spoke of the contributions made by magicians to science. Thirty-five years ago magicians had employed radio, before there was any other knowledge of the subject. They had communicated over distances of 1,000 feet with inductance telephones of a crude type.

By their contact with chemicals of all sorts, several magicians had given minor contributions to the advancement of chemistry of all sorts, in some ways magicians were responsible for the mechanism of modern clocks.

The magician-priests of the Mayans had devised a calendar 4,000 years ago which was more accurate and better compensated than the present one.

"There is no great secret about magic," said Mr. Fleming. "It is presentation, showmanship, and a certain amount of misrepresentation, what we call misdirection." Four other magicians attended the luncheon. They were William Harkness, Victoria; David Langburg, Reno; Dr. Harry McManus, Reno; and Dr. Jack Boeshard, Hollywood and Seattle.

Cochrane, Ont., July 13.—The town of Nankina, Canadian National Railway branch terminal, was reported today, travelled by bus, that the inhabitants prepared to move out by train.

Who's Who At Hotels

"I am coming back here again next year instead of going to Lake of the Woods. The fish here have much more fight in them," said Peter Jones of Wabash, Indiana, this morning as he stood outside the south door of the Empress Hotel, being photographed with two fish which he caught at Brentwood yesterday, and which earned him two buttons, silver and bronze, in one afternoon.

The silver button fish, a thirty-one-and-a-half pounder, fought for an hour and ten minutes before Mr. Jones finally got it inside Hugh Speed's boat. The bronze button fish tipped the scales at slightly over twenty pounds.

It was the first time Mr. Jones had ever gone fishing in British Columbia waters. He was so impressed with the run at Brentwood that he is staying over an extra day to try and get some more big ones.

"I've done a lot of fishing at Lake of the Woods, in Ontario, for muskie. I caught a forty-two-and-a-half-pounder there, but it didn't half the fight this one had," said Mr. Jones. "It has never taken me more than twenty minutes to land a fish at Lake of the Woods."

Visitors to the Empress Hotel from all parts of the United States and Canada crowded around Mr. Jones while the picture was taken, and admiringly examined the two big fish afterwards. Some of them headed straight for the information desk to arrange for fishing trips on their own account.

Getting away from the cares of civic affairs for a while is J. Jenkins, Mayor of Westmont, Quebec, wealthy suburb of Montreal. Mayor Jenkins has been staying over the week-end at the Empress Hotel. He is accompanied by his daughter and his son, John.

Mr. Jenkins finds Victoria a good place for mental relaxation.

Red Shrine fezes were the fashion in the Empress Hotel lobby over the week-end, with 150 United States delegates to the Shrine convention, which opens today in Seattle coming over for a pre-session rest, and some thirty members of Wa-Wa Temple, Saskatchewan, passing through on their way to the convention.

Peter Ignace Duchesneau de Ratis, assistant manager of the hotel, was wearing a fez yesterday as he showed members of the Saskatchewan party, many of whom are old friends of his, over the hotel.

The prairie Shriner were led by Fosterton, Dr. George and Mrs. George, past-potente Walter McInnis and Mrs. McInnis, and past-potente Walter Logan and Mrs. Logan.

Standing in the Empress Hotel lobby this morning, attired in perfectly-creased white slacks and a leather wind-breaker jacket, waiting to go out on location with her husband, who has the leading role in the Central Films' production, "Vengeance of the Forest," Mrs. William Gargan was this morning telling the most hair-raising ghost stories of Hollywood, which she swears are true.

The stories concerned unusual events in homes which housed collections of curious brought from India and Egypt by Mrs. William Gargan and Douglas Fairbanks.

Some of the curious had the habit of wandering about the houses at night, falling off shelves with no provocation, and generally scaring the inhabitants, according to Mrs. Gargan.

Once again, California cars were thick around the Empress Hotel this morning, and California people occupied the majority of the space on the hotel list.

Among yesterday and today's arrivals were Mr. and Mrs. L. Adams, Berkeley; Mrs. M. F. Dozier, Oakland; Mrs. Nelson, Alameda; Mrs. H. J. McCord and their daughter, Los Angeles; and Mrs. R. W. Callaway, Los Angeles; Mr. and Mrs. B. Cameron, Hollywood; Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Clark, Oakland; Mr. and Mrs. F. Howard Jr., Walnut Creek; and Mrs. N. Rosenberg, Alhambra; daughter, San Francisco; H. S. Kohn, San Francisco; Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Miller, Long Beach; Mr. and Mrs. J. Kuhns, Long Beach; Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Pettet and Mrs. Pettet, San Francisco; Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Rutheigen, Long Beach; Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Mansfield, Beverly Hills; Mr. G. Vetter, Hollywood; and Mr. and Mrs. N. T. Shaw, Hollywood.

Other United States visitors at the Empress Hotel today are fairly equalled in number by every quarter of the union. Names on the register include Mr. and Mrs. G. Ellis, Fort Worth, Texas; Harold Todd, Indians; Dr. and Mrs. Beck and their sons, New York City; Miss A. M. Sacker, Boston, Mass.; Mrs. W. L. Dayton, Denver, Colo.; Mrs. E. Lande and Miss Lande, New York City; Mrs. C. J. Fox and sons, Providence, Rhode Island; Mr. R. L. Harbrook, Western Springs, Ill.; and Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Tyson, Madison, Wis.

Californians are also finding the Dominion Hotel excellent headquarters for their visits to Vancouver Island, to judge by the number of names on the list there. Among yesterday and this morning's arrivals were Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Cummin, Los Angeles; W. T. Baker and Ed. Lewis, San Francisco; Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Doods and Martha and Henry Doods, Palo Alto; Mr. and Mrs. A. I. Morgan and A. Morgan Jr., Berkeley; Mrs. B. F. Zeus, Los Angeles; Mrs. A. J. Bagdy, Los Angeles; Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Loback, Santa Monica; Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Culver, San Diego, and Lillian Wells and Winifred Hay, San Francisco.

Among other United States visitors at the Dominion Hotel are Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Bone, Oak Bark, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Faber and James B. Gouley, Brooklyn, N.Y.; Dr. E. H. Woods, Moscow, Ida.; Jack R. Bamage, Los Angeles; Mr. and Mrs. E. Reynolds and Miss Margaret Reynolds, Madison, Wis.; Mrs. Akin and Miss

1937 VICTOR With "Magic Voice" Now Here

The superbly realistic tone of the new 1937 Victor radio is created by an acoustically-aided chamber at the back of the radio. The music comes to you through organ-like pipes and the result is a revelation even to those trained to appreciate true tone values. See the new Victor model here this week.

SALARY RAISE IS PROTESTED

Ald. Ed. Williams Against Pay Boost For City Staff

A recommendation of the finance committee to increase certain salaries of civic employees, which will be considered by the City Council this evening is protested in a letter from Alderman Ed. Williams filed with the city clerk.

Alderman Williams is in Seattle and will not be present at tonight's meeting. The committee's recommendation affects fifteen employees and increases from $20 a month down are recommended. In most cases they affect officials who have been promoted but have not had their salaries raised.

In the current estimates the council allotted $2,500 for salary increases this year, but to date this amount has not been touched.

Alderman Williams cited relief cases in support of his argument against the raises. As chairman of the relief committee he said he had been forced to disallow applications for extra days' work. "He had done this, not because he did not want the men to get the work, but because the city could not afford it, he said.

Col. H. C. Carey, 1737 Rockland Avenue, suffered head injuries which necessitated his removal to the Jubilee Hospital, in an accident near the corner of Oak Bay Avenue and Richmond Road this morning, about 11:30 o'clock.

He was struck and knocked down by a car driven east on Oak Bay Avenue by Mrs. W. C. Sampson, 1003 Newport Avenue. Col. Carey was walking from the south to the north side of the avenue.

He was taken to the hospital in the G. C. ambulance and was attended by Dr. E. W. Book.

DROUGHT GRIPS GRAIN COUNTRY

U.S. Weather Bureau Fears Climax May Not Come Until Later

Washington, D.C., July 13.—Drought news has focused all eyes on the northwest, where stalks of the "dreaded" wheat, but it must not be imagined that drought is confined only to the Dakotas and Montana, the U.S. Weather Bureau warns, in its summary of the past week's crop-weather conditions. Serious lack of moisture, with rainfall far below the May-June record of the Mississippi Valley, that are not badly suffering as yet, but in general nearly all of the principal agricultural sections of the country are in urgent need of rain, the report states.

A summary by states shows that whereas North Dakota's May-June rainfall totaled 59 per cent of normal in 1934, this year it was only 32 per cent. The corresponding figures for South Dakota are 62 and 49, for Montana 78 and 52, for Missouri 49 and 37, for Arkansas 68 and 40, for Kentucky 76 and 36, for Tennessee 96 and 23. Louisiana apparently holds the sixty-day aridity championship, with only 7 per cent of normal rainfall for the May-June period. Iowa and Nebraska have got off comparatively easily—they have had a little more rain than in the corresponding period in 1934.

And the worst may yet be to come, the Weather Bureau continues, reminding that the really severe drought in 1934 did not reach its climax until late July and August.

And by way of banishing the contrast, the northern Atlantic seaboard has had at least moderate rains, and temperatures quite decidedly cooler for the season.

GRASSHOPPER MENACE GROWS

Washington, D.C., July 13.—Grasshoppers, plus failure to act on the part of western governments, have confronted the wheat-growing region beyond the Missouri with a very serious threat, said the already existing crop shortage due to the drought.

Last fall, the bureau of entomology and plant quarantine, Department of Agriculture, found unusually large numbers of grasshopper eggs in the soil of the plains and western prairies. At that time the scientists warned the various governments concerned, so that stores of poison bait might be ready when the insects should hatch and begin crawling, this spring. Without exception the statement governments did nothing.

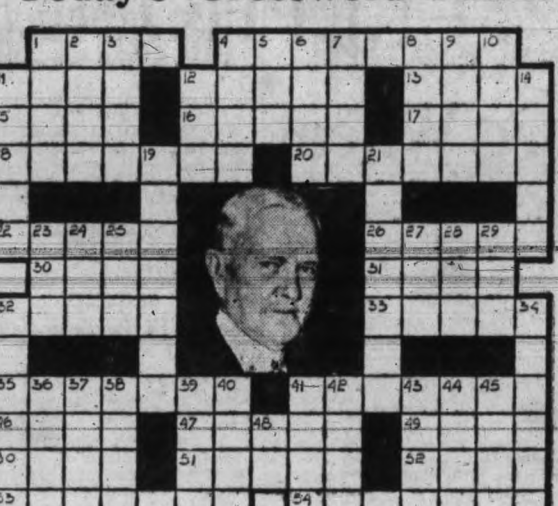

The grasshoppers have developed almost to the point where they have wings and begin flying in hordes. The western states, alarmed, asked Congress for aid, since their Legislatures had adjourned and there was no way of providing funds to meet the emergency which their inaction had permitted to arise.

Agents of the bureau of entomology and plant quarantine in the west are locating the necessary raw materials for the poison bait: arsenic compounds or sodium fluosilicate, molasses, and trainload lots of bran. They are also making preliminary arrangements for transportation to the "hopper-infested areas. So as soon as the joint resolution is signed the battlefront can be built against the grasshoppers.

Even with the speediest possible action, there is considerable doubt whether disaster can be averted this year. Only about ten days remain, in which a poison-bait campaign can be expected to have any effect at all. The materials are bought, distributed, mixed, and placed where the crawling young of the grasshoppers can find and eat the poison bait.

Furthermore, the sum made available is estimated to be only about

THIS CURIOUS WORLD By William Ferguson

The Queen Mary has the largest whistle ever fitted to a ship. Three of these great seven-foot instruments are used, two on the fore funnel and one on the midships funnel. the "hoppers. The bureau of entomology and plant quarantine was not consulted either as to the desirability of using federal funds for this purpose or regarding the adequacy of the amount or the timeliness of action. They are rather in the position of Gallien's "taxicab" army before Paris in 1914: hastily mobilized, insufficiently munitioned, yet expected to stem the oncoming hordes in grey.

ANN HARDING AT THE ATLAS

"The Lady Consents" Opens Today For Three-day Engagement

Smart and sophisticated urban drama, "The Lady Consents," at the Atlas Theatre, is preponderantly humorous, but is effectively touched with deeper dramatic moments. Co-starring Ann Harding and Herbert Marshall, who are supported by a brilliant cast, the film is based on a novel variation of the love triangle in an intimately modern setting. Action is brisk and entertaining, lines by Anthony Veiller are true to character, and the story by P. J. Wolfson is virile and smart. Miss Harding finds one of her best roles as the wife who allows a cunning woman to lure away the husband to whom she is devotedly attached. A society physician who is married to Ann Harding, Herbert Marshall gives a splendid portrayal of a man who succumbs to the blandishments of a designing woman. "Forced Landing," starring Esther Ralston and Onslow Stevens, is the second feature.

Many Stars Cast In Big Picture

"A Midsummer Night's Dream," which will be shown at the opening of the Oak Bay Theatre on Wednesday, is rich with effects produced by infinite detail. The picture is a mighty epic of the screen produced by Max Reinhardt and directed by Reinhardt in association with William Dieterle. It is set to the strains of Mendelssohn's beautiful music as arranged by Erich Wolfgang Korngold. There is an all star cast which includes James Cagney, Joe E. Brown, Dick Powell, Jean Muir, Victor Jory, Verree Teasdale, Anita Louise, Hugh Herbert, Frank McHugh, Mickey Rooney and scores of others.

Twelvetees At Plaza Theatre

"There are enough real-life dramas staged on the streets of New York every twenty-four hours to keep all the motion-picture studios in the world working at full blast for ten years!"

George B. Seitz, who directed "Times Square Lady," the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer hit which comes to the Plaza Theatre today, with Virginia Bruce, Robert Taylor, Isabel Jewell, Pinky Tomlin, Helen Twelvetees and others in the featured roles, made that sage observation recently. "If anything ever happens to New York," he added, "the studios will have to close up. It's the most prolific story-source in all the world."

The second feature on the programme is "One Way Ticket," presenting Lloyd Nolan and Peggy Conklin.

Columbia Shows "Harmony Lane"

The romance and tragedy in the life of the great composing genius, Stephen Collins Foster, provides the background for "Harmony Lane," pretentious Mascot production, which is now at the Columbia Theatre.

It is the story of a man who from early boyhood was gifted with a real feeling for melody—and an understanding of the rhythm which he learned early in life in little negro churches around Pittsburgh. "Harmony Lane" has in the cast such outstanding screen stars as Evelyn Venable, Adrienne Ames, Joseph Cavorth, William Frawley, Lloyd Hughes, Gilbert Emery, Clarence Muse and the Shaw Choir, James Bush, David Torrence, Cora Sue Collins, Ferdinand Munier, Al Herman, Earl Hodgins, the "Nee Paw" of radio fame, Wynne Davis, the Allied Arts prize-winning songstress, and a cast of thousands.

Shown as the second feature is "Reckless Roads," with Edith Allen, Regis Toomey, Lloyd Hughes, and Ben Alexander.

"The Big Noise" Opens Tomorrow

More hilarious laughs and more big thrills than seen on the screen in many a long day are said to have been packed into the Warner Bros. comedy drama, "The Big Noise," which opens at the Dominion Theatre tomorrow.

There is a litting and frothy lightness to the film that makes it highly humorous and entertaining, although this is punctuated by exciting episodes. There also is a glamorous personal romance as well as the thrill and romance of big business with its attendant rackets.

The story concerns the ousting of the head of a big corporation because he refuses to produce inferior products. Retired in middle age, the business man is restless and fretful and finally pulls the wool over the eyes of his wife and doctor, who insist he is ill, by buying a partnership with a young chemist in the Checker Club Cleaning establishment and pretending to spend his time playing checkers.

Buying Support Induces Rise In Winnipeg Wheat

Canadian Press
Winnipeg, July 13.—A late influx of buying carried wheat futures prices forward from early losses on the Winnipeg grain exchange today, values closing  $\frac{7}{8}$  to  $\frac{3}{4}$  cent higher. July finished at 91 $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢, October at 91 $\frac{1}{4}$ ¢ to 91 $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢ and December at 91 $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢ cents a bushel.

Good buying credited to southern and eastern interests and foreign accounts carried prices from losses of almost two cents up to a one cent advance.

Export business was poorer, with total estimated at 250,000 bushels. Stop-loss selling caused the early downturn.

In the coarse grains pit oats found good mill buying and advanced up to three cents at one time. Rye values cracked under stop-loss selling but followed wheat, dropping and Liverpool ruled 3½ to 3¾ lower at the close. Chicago, shortly before closing, showed losses of 1½ cents and Minneapolis one cent. Buenos Aires was also down at noon one cent lower.

Mothers Should Be Given Vacations Says She Needs to Get Away From Home

THERE USED to be a popular ditty whose refrain was: "Everybody Works But Father." The summer theme song should be "Everybody Gets a Vacation But Mother."

We realize that the tired business man needs rest and recreation and a change after his year's hard work, and that every pretty girl is entitled to her summer vacation and flirtations, and that it is just the making of adolescent girls and boys to be sent off to camp. But we assure you that Mother has had such a luxurious time loafing around home with nothing on earth to do except to cook and clean and mend and baby-tend and wrestle with the family dispositions and peculiarities, that she does not need any relaxation or diversion or a different atmosphere.

Or, if we are broad-minded enough to concede that possibly Mother might be a trifle weary of preparing 1,000 meals a year, not counting the extras, and that she might relish eating something she had not cooked herself, that wiping little noses and darned little socks, finding lost caps and schoolbooks, locating husband's clean shirt and the tie that goes with it might get monotonous in the course of time if it had to be done every day, we are still convinced that Mother is so peculiarly constituted that she would be perfectly miserable if her routine was broken.

So when we plan Mother's vacation we send her off to the country somewhere with all the children, where she will still have to do all the family chores in addition to running a free hotel for visitors, and where she will have to work ten times as hard as she did at home, because she will lack her kitchen conveniences and there will be no market around the corner and no delicatessen store to run to when unexpected company arrives.

Or, perhaps, if we are particularly generous and solicitous about Mother's happiness, we send her off on a nice trip with all the younger children along with her, and when she returns a perfect wreck from having to wrestle with getting the baby's formula prepared in seven hotels and keeping Bobby from falling out of car windows and making Mary eat her spinach in restaurants instead of four different kinds of dessert, we shake our heads and say that, after all, change does not seem to agree with Mother and she is better off at home.

No matter how much we love Mother, nor how anxious we are to cherish her, we never give her a real vacation. We never plan anything for her that any real human woman would enjoy. We never think of such a thing as taking Mother completely out of her environment for two whole weeks and setting her down in a strange place where she would have nothing to do but to lie and spend the mornings and have her breakfast brought to her and spend the remainder of the day in amusing herself as she liked. We never think of giving her even fourteen days of blessed release from quarreling children and babies' wails and the never-ending cry for M-O-I-H-E-R.

In other words, Mother never gets a real vacation at all, yet she is the one person in the world who needs it. She has no thirty-hour week, no holidays and Sundays off, no "conferences," none of the coming and going and contact with strangers that gives variety and pep to work done in the business world.

It is because domestic labor is so monotonous that so many housewives, who are bundles of frazzled nerves, and are nagging and peevish and hard to live with, and the one and only remedy for this is a vacation. Take one of these fretful, complaining women away from her home, away from her children, and give her a two-weeks' rest on two weeks' whirl, according to her taste, and she would come back thinking her husband, whom she was about to divorce, a prince; her children angels instead of brats, and the house she was continually finding fault with a palace. And she would come back full of new recipes and feel that making a home was the grandest job on earth.

Of course, when the novel idea of having a vacation is broached to Mother she will say she just simply can't leave the house and the children, and what would become of everything if she went away for a couple of weeks? But she can go. There is always some old aunt or cousin or friend who would gladly take her, or a trained nurse who would take more scientific care of the children than she does, and when she comes back rested and refreshed she will be so much more agreeable as a companion and so much more efficient as a housewife that her own family positively will not know her.

Give Mother a vacation. It is an investment that will pay 100 per cent on the dollar.

Uncle Wiggly's Sore Throat

By HOWARD R. GARIS

When Nurse Jane Puzzy Wuzzy came out of the room in the hollow stony tunnel where Uncle Wiggly was reading the paper, she carried the end of her tail over her shoulder so it wouldn't drag and make a noise.

"What's the matter, Janie?" asked Mrs. Longears, who was baking a loaf of cake.

"Uncle Wiggly is very cross this morning," said Nurse Jane. "He told me to go out of the room and not come so much noise dusting. Oh, he is a very cross rabbit today."

"Didn't he say 'please' when he asked you to leave the room?" asked Mrs. Longears.

"Oh, yes, he said it, but he's cross just the same. I never knew him to be that way before."

"There must be something wrong," said Uncle Wiggly's wife. "I'll go see about it. I'm sorry, Janie."

"When a rabbit gentleman is ill he doesn't mean what he says. I can excuse him."

"But I never knew Uncle Wiggly to be like this," said his wife with a worried little twinkle of her pink nose. "I must see about it." She hurried into the room where Mr. Longears was reading the paper.

"Excuses himself," said Uncle Wiggly. "I thought I told you to stay out of here and not bang the chairs around. I said Uncle Wiggly's wife was cross. But when he saw it was his wife he said: 'Oh, excuse me, my dear. I thought you were Nurse Jane and I didn't want.'"

"You shouldn't talk that way to Nurse Jane either, Wiggly," said the rabbit lady. "What's the matter with you, anyhow, today?"

"Oh, I have a very sore throat," said Mr. Longears. "I must have caught cold. And when Nurse Jane made a lot of dust wiping the chairs, I'm sorry I was cross to her. But really my throat—"

"You must have Dr. Fussum right away," said Mrs. Longears. "He will cure your sore throat. I'll telephone him."

"I'll hop over to his office. It will do me good to get out. I'll tell Nurse Jane I'm sorry when I get back."

"Yes, I think you should," said Mrs. Longears.

On his way through the woods to the office of Dr. Fussum Uncle Wiggly felt the pain more than ever. He was feeling very sorry for himself and getting more and more cross when all of a sudden he heard a voice singing a song like this:

"Oh, ho! Oh, ho! Merrily I'll follow you, When you get time, And come to our big show!"

HOROSCOPE

The stars incline, but do not compel!

TUESDAY, JULY 13, 1936

Rarely fortunate aspects rule today, according to astrology. The sun, in Cancer, is active and every hour should be utilized to the best advantage. In the morning, when the sun is in the east, there will be a dearth of young men with trained hands. Many trades will suffer delays because of lack of labor. Late in the day, when the sun is in the west, there will be a dearth of young women with trained hands. Many trades will suffer delays because of lack of labor. Late in the day, when the sun is in the west, there will be a dearth of young women with trained hands. Many trades will suffer delays because of lack of labor.

Good fellowship should be prevalent at this time. There may be international problems to be solved. Closer relations with Mexico are indicated for next year. Marriage among persons of prominence will be numerous in the autumn, when there will be royal pageants in Europe. Persons whose birthday is in the sign of the zodiac of Cancer should have a very successful year. Children born on this day probably will be gifted in many ways. Subjects of this sign enjoy horse and many sports and authors.

Cress Wister, author who was born on this day, 1880. Others who have celebrated it as a birthday include Ernest K. Lindley, journalist, 1887; Arthur C. Jensen, 1888, and William H. Burr, civil engineer, 1891.

FISH IN LAKE DIE OF HEAT

Canadian Press

Port Arthur, Ont., July 13.—Reports to the Ontario forestry branch here said the heat in the vicinity of Cheesman Lake, seventy-five miles north of here, had become so intense that fish in the lake were dying in large numbers. The lake is shallow and heavy toll was being taken among whitefish, trout and other fish, it was said.

Mothers Should Be Given Vacations

Says She Needs to Get Away From Home

THERE USED to be a popular ditty whose refrain was: "Everybody Works But Father." The summer theme song should be "Everybody Gets a Vacation But Mother."

We realize that the tired business man needs rest and recreation and a change after his year's hard work, and that every pretty girl is entitled to her summer vacation and flirtations, and that it is just the making of adolescent girls and boys to be sent off to camp. But for this is a vacation Mother has had such a luxurious time loafing around home with nothing on earth to do except to cook and clean and mend and baby-tend and wrestle with the family dispositions and peculiarities, that she does not need any relaxation or diversion or a different atmosphere.

Or, if we are broad-minded enough to concede that possibly Mother might be a trifle weary of preparing 1,000 meals a week, not counting the extras, and that she might relish eating something she had not cooked herself, that wiping little noses and darning little socks, finding lost caps and schoolbooks, locating husband's clean shirt and the tie that goes with it might get monotonous in the course of time if it had to be done every day, we are still convinced that Mother is so peculiarly constituted that she would be perfectly miserable if her routine was broken.

So when we plan Mother's vacation we send her off to the country somewhere with all the children, where she will still have to do all the family chores in addition to running a free hotel for visitors, and where she will have to work ten times as hard as she did at home, because she will lack her kitchen conveniences and there will be no market around the corner and no delicatessen store to run to when unexpected company arrives.

Or, perhaps, if we are particularly generous and solicitous about Mother's happiness, we send her off on a nice trip with all the younger children along with her, and when she returns a perfect wreck from having to wrestle with getting the baby's formula prepared in strange hotels and keeping Bobby from falling out of car windows and making Mary eat her spinach in restaurants instead of four different kinds of dessert, we shake our heads and say that, after all, change does not seem to agree with Mother and she is better off at home.

No matter how much we love Mother, nor how anxious we are to cherish her, we never give her a real vacation. We never plan anything for her that any real human woman would enjoy. We never think of such a thing as taking Mother completely out of her environment for two whole weeks and setting her down in a strange place where she would have nothing to do but to lie abed in the mornings and have her breakfast brought to her and spend the remainder of the day in amusing herself as she liked. We never think of giving her even fourteen days of blessed release from quarreling children and babies' wails and the never-ending cry for M-o-t-h-e-r.

In other words, Mother never gets a real vacation at all, yet she is the one person in the world who most needs it. She has no thirty-hour week, no holidays and Sundays off, no "conferences," none of the coming and going and contact with strangers that gives variety and pep to work done in the business world.

It is because domestic labor is so monotonous that so many housewives get to be bundles of frazzled nerves, and are nagging and peevish and hard to live with. And the one and only remedy for this is a vacation. Take one of these fretful, complaining women away from her home, away from her children, and give her a two-weeks' rest on a two-weeks' whirl, according to her taste, and she would come back thinking her husband, whom she was about to divorce, a prince; her children angels instead of brats, and the house she was continually finding fault with a palace. And she would come back full of new recipes and feel that making a home was the grandest job on earth.

Of course, when the novel idea of having a vacation is broached to Mother she will say she just simply can't leave the house and the children, and what would become of everything if she went away for a couple of weeks? But she can go. There is always some old aunt or cousin or friend who would pinch-hit for her, or a trained nurse who would take over the scientific care of the children, and she does, and she comes back rested and refreshed and she will be so much more agreeable as a companion and so much more efficient as a housewife that her own family positively will not know her.

Give Mother a vacation. It is an investment that will pay 100 per cent on the dollar.

Uncle Wiggly's Sore Throat

By HOWARD E. GARIS

When Nurse Jane Puffy Wussy came out of the room in the hollow stump bungalow where Uncle Wiggly was reading the paper, she was carrying a box of band-aids. "What's the matter, Janie?" asked Mrs. Longears, who was taking a loaf of cake. "Uncle Wiggly is very cross this morning," said Nurse Jane. "He told me to go out of the room and not make so much noise dusting. Oh, he is a very cross rabbit today." "Didn't he say 'please' when he asked you to leave the room?" asked Mrs. Longears. "Oh, yes, he said it, but he's cross just the same. He never knew him to be that way before." "There must be something wrong," said Uncle Wiggly's wife. "I'll go see about it." "Oh, I don't mind," squeaked Nurse Jane. "When a rabbit gentleman is ill he doesn't mean what he says. I can excuse him." "But I never knew Uncle Wiggly to be like this," said his wife with worried little twinkle of her pink nose. "I must see about it," she hurried into the room where Mr. Longears was reading the paper.

EXCUSES HIMSELF

"I thought I told you to stay out of here and not bang the chairs around," said Uncle Wiggly, his voice as cross as a cactus. But when he saw it was his wife he said: "Oh, excuse my dear. I thought you were Nurse Jane and I didn't want you to hear that way to Nurse Jane either. Wiggly," said the rabbit lady. "What's the matter with you, anyhow, today?" "Oh, I have a very sore throat," said Mr. Longears. "I must have caught cold. And when Nurse Jane made a lot of dust while she was dusting, it got into my throat. But really my throat—"

"You must have Dr. Fennum right away," said Mrs. Longears. "He will cure your sore throat. I'll telephone him."

On his way through the woods to the office of Dr. Fennum Uncle Wiggly felt the pain more than ever. He was feeling very sorry for himself and getting more and more cross when, all of a sudden, he heard a voice singing a song like this:

"Oh, he! Oh, he! Merrily I go. When you get time Just spend a dime And come to our big show!"

SEES TALL GIRAFFE

"Why?" exclaimed Uncle Wiggly, "that must be a circus song. I don't know it." A moment later he saw a tall giraffe from the tall animal standing along in the woods. The giraffe, who has the longest neck of any animal in the world, was looking over the tops of the trees.

"That was a very fine song you were singing, Mr. Giraffe," said the bunny gentleman. "Oh, you should hear me sing when I haven't a sore throat," laughed the long-necked circus animal. "I'm really good then."

"Have you a sore throat?" asked Uncle Wiggly.

"Very sore throat," answered the giraffe. "Some people say I don't talk, but I can. Maybe that's why my throat is sore. Why, I've enough sore throat for a dozen chaps like you. But I don't care. I'm going to have a good time. Hurry!"

Uncle Wiggly looked at the tall animal, happened next I'll tell you in the store tomorrow night. It will be about Uncle Wiggly's candy sticks. And I hope the
